DOUGHERTY COUNTY VOTES GEORGIA WET, 6-1, AS STATE OFFICIAL WARNS OF LIQUOR SALE

W. L. MOORE GIVES $1,000 TO ASSIST PLANT-TO-PROSPER

Oil Executive Declares Business Will Benefit From Constitution Contest as Well as Farmer.

VITAL TO GEORGIA,' LETTER ASSERTS

He Asks Contribution Be Used To Carry Plan to Every Nook, and Corner

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

Wiley L. Moore, president of the Wofford Oil Company, of Georgia, yesterday added $1,000 to The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign promotion fund to aid in carrying "the movement into every nook and corner of Georgia."

Asserting he realizes The Constitution will expend several thousand dollars in addition to the $4,000 in cash awards, the eight silver trophies and the 577 other honors offered progressive Georgia farmers for 1938, Mr. Moore wrote Major Clark Howell, president and publisher of The Constitution, enclosing a check for $1,000 "as my contribution to your splendid program in behalf of Georgia progress and prosperity."

Vital to Georgia.

"The success of The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign is of vital interest to Georgia," the letter pointed out. Agricultural development is a paramount issue in Georgia.

"Business has a direct interest in the future of the Georgia farmer. It can well afford to invest in him.

"The economic condition of the farmer is reflected in every urban community.

Every Nook and Corner.

"So convinced am I that everything possible should be done to induce planters of Georgia to take full advantage of the Plant-to-Prosper program, that I am now offering you and The Constitution $1,000 to be used in promotion work in carrying the movement to every nook and corner of Georgia."

Mr. Moore has long been active in civic, business and philanthropic circles.

He is former president of the Atlanta and Georgia State Chamber of Commerce. Several years ago he served as a member of city council from the old seventh ward and as chairman of the important finance committee of that body.

His interest in everything affecting the progress and prosperity of Georgia is well known. He has contributed his time and money to building a greater and more progressive state.

Text of Letter.

Text of Mr. Moore's letter to Major Howell follows:

"The success of The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign is of vital interest to Georgia. It will accelerate adoption of sound farming programs and will do more to revitalize business in Georgia than any one thing I can think of.

"Agricultural development is a paramount issue in Georgia. The future of the state depends on the

CHARGES DROPPED IN DAUGHTRY CASE

Next Screven Grand Jury, However, Will Resume Murder Investigation.

SYLVANIA, March 7.—(AP)—The weird case of the slaying of wealthy Charlie L. Daughtry in a turpentine bog wound up today in dismissal of charges against the five persons accused of plotting his death for a share of the estate, but it was not marked closed.

Moving to nol prosse the indictments after Judge W. M. Harper, of Americus, refused to delay trial any longer, Solicitor General W. G. Neville said the next Screven county grand jury would continue investigation of the planter's death.

The five accused persons, Marie Daughtry, daughter of the slain man; Albert L. Cobb, Savannah lawyer and former congressional candidate; Cobb's brother-in-law, Joe Newton, Bloomingdale merchant; Ralph Newton, the latter's son, and Osborne Newton, a distant cousin, were freed. They had been at liberty under bond.

Contempt Charges.

Cobb now must face two contempt charges pending against him in Judge Woodrum's court at Millen.

Fined and sentenced to 20 days in jail 10 days ago for writing what he thought about the judge of the Ogeechee court, Cobb was relieved of the prison term until after today's hearing on the more serious charge.

Judge Woodrum stated in Millen tonight that the course he will take will depend upon whether or not Cobb appeals from the contempt decision. This the attorney is expected to do, although he was not available tonight for a statement.

A second contempt proceeding has been lodged against Cobb.

600 REBELS LOST AS LOYALISTS SINK CRUISER BALEARES

British Navy Reports It Saved 200 Others When Spanish Ship Was Sent Down in Mediterranean.

FLIERS IN REPRISAL SHELL CARTAGENA

Franco Bombers Swoop Down on Seaport in Move for Retaliation.

GIBRALTAR, March 7.—(AP)—British naval sources tonight said approximately 600 Spanish Insurgent seamen drowned when the 10,000-ton cruiser Baleares was torpedoed and sunk by government warships early Sunday morning.

British warships in the vicinity, 75 miles east of Cape Palos, Spain, in the western Mediterranean, saved 200 others from the doomed Insurgent cruiser.

The estimate of casualties was made by crew members of the British destroyers Kempenfelt and Boreas which arrived here today with the survivors.

INSURGENT PLANES BOMB CARTAGENA

MADRID, March 7.—(AP)—Spanish Insurgent warplanes struck fiercely at the port of Cartagena today in swift retaliation for a government naval victory hailed here as the blow which broke the Insurgent blockade of the eastern Spanish coast.

Five times Generalissimo Francisco's Franco's attackers roared over Cartagena raining bombs on the port and government canal base.

A communique stated the naval base was not damaged, but no mention was made of casualties.

Blockade Break Doubted.

Some observers regarded as premature the sweeping declaration that the Insurgent blockade was broken as a result of the sinking of the 10,000-ton Insurgent cruiser Baleares in Sunday's spectacular naval battle.

(There was a question at first whether the craft was the Baleares or her sister-ship, the Canarias.)

With the Baleares destroyed, the fleets of the opposing sides were much nearer parity.

The government now has two cruisers, about 12 effective destroyers, six torpedo boats, four or five submarines and a number of smaller craft.

The Insurgents have three cruisers, one destroyer, five torpedo boats, four submarines, four mine layers, two gunboats and smaller craft, including armed merchantmen and trawlers.

The victory greatly encouraged government officials, who said it would go far toward compensating

OUSTED HEROINE OF SOVIETS CALLS RED EDITOR 'LIAR'

Barbara Yakovleva Says Bucharin Wanted Lenin and Stalin Killed To Prevent German Accord.

TROTSKY NAMED AS 'REAL LEADER'

Physicians Accused of Causing Death of Maxim Gorky, Two Others.

MOSCOW, March 7.—(AP)—Nikolai Bucharin, self-admitted leader of the 20 former high-ranking Russians on trial with him for treason and murder, asserted today he was certain he would have to face a firing squad.

The one-time chronicler of the Soviet revolution and famous editor made his dramatic declaration while answering a charge by Barbara Yakovleva, former head of the dreaded Cheka, or secret police, that in 1918 he had wanted Nikolai Lenin and Joseph Stalin assassinated if they insisted on peace with Germany.

"You arrested me and I probably shall not continue to live," Bucharin said. "I am quite sure I shall not."

Denies Planning Death.

Nevertheless, he denied he ever had plotted to kill Lenin or Stalin, asserting he "merely wanted to arrest them to save their lives."

Madame Yakovleva, now a large, faded woman of 53, came from prison to take the stand as the chief witness of the great treason trial against Bucharin. Like those on trial, she was an active figure in the early stages of the revolution, but now fallen. She went to prison last November after having been commissar of finance.

Opposed Signing Treaty.

Speaking in a slow, quavering monotone she testified that a certain Stukoff, opposing the signing of the Brest-Litovsk treaty of 1918 with Germany, told a group within the Moscow inner circle of the Communist party:

"We should not stop before arresting Lenin, Stalin and Sverdloff, if they continue to insist on their line, and destroying them."

Bucharin, who interrupted her frequently, asserted:

"Under no circumstances did we speak of killing them."

He declared that Leon Trotsky, exiled and now in Mexico, was "the real instigator and leader" of the plots against the Soviet regime.

At times there were spirited exchanges between Bucharin and Madame Yakovleva. Once she shouted:

"Bucharin lies!"

He had asserted that Vyacheslaff Menzhinsky, once head of the secret police, and Valerian V. Kuibisheff, chief of the first five-year-plan, had been members of his group.

Physicians Accused.

Three of the defendants, eminent physicians, are accused of causing their deaths and that of Maxim Gorky, the writer, all of whom previously had been believed to have died of natural causes.

The alleged poisoning of Gorky was brought into the testimony at today's session when a statement by a Dr. Bielostotsky, one of the kremlin physicians who attended Gorky, was read into the record. It indicated he suspected something was wrong with the writer's death.

He said his doubts were aroused by the instructions of Dr. L. G. Levin, one of the defendants, to inject various mericines in large quantities.

Ten days before Gorky's death, he said, Dr. D. D. Pletnyeff, another defendant, remarked cynically:

"Let's give the sick man something to ease him out."

Bully Is Trying To Do Everything That He Can, But--

"Prince" lives only in pictures now for Joe, at the left, and Ed Lindsey, whose pet dog was killed early Saturday. Bully, their fox terrier pet sits close to their sides as they look over recent pictures made of their deceased 130-pound dog, and seems to share in silence the loss of the "neighborhood pet," as Prince was known to playmates of the Lindsey children. An appeal and offer of a reward appears in today's Constitution (shown in inset) for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Prince.

BOY HURT IN BLAST 35 FEET IN THE AIR

East Point Youth Hurled Off Pole, Another Hurt as Insulator Explodes.

An exploding insulator in high tension wires said to be carrying 22,000 volts yesterday knocked 10-year-old Spencer Baxter, of East Point, through a maze of wires to the ground 35 feet below, sending him to Grady hospital with severe burns and bruises.

The son of East Point's Mayor J. R. Parham, Reed Parham, 13, was struck in the head by a piece of the bursting insulator as he hung on the top of a tension line pole with young Baxter.

A third companion, Ramsey Bice, 11, also of East Point, was standing on the ground and was uninjured.

Baxter and Parham had climbed the triangular power pole to remove tree limbs entangled in the wires, Bice said.

As Baxter reached out to remove the broken limbs he touched an insulator, which immediately exploded, his companions said. Baxter fell through the wires to the ground. Parham said a piece of the insulator knocked him backward about three feet, but he was only dazed by the blow and did not fall to the ground.

Bice ran to get his fallen playmate's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Baxter, at 520 Thompson avenue, about three blocks from the scene of the accident.

'Death Ray' Lamp Kills Cold Germs

Tube Installed at Bank Window Sterilizes Breaths in Second.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor.

NEW YORK, March 7.—A new lamp whose beams protect a person against catching the other fellow's cold was announced today at a meeting here of the American Institute, New York's oldest scientific society.

The first installation is at the teller's window of the LaFayette Bank & Trust Company at Suffern, N. Y. It was described as the culmination of 10 years search for a form of ultra-violet light to purify air and all that man touches, without hurting his eyes.

Curtain of Light.

In the bank window the beams form a curtain of bluish light falling from a long, horizontal, overhead tube of mercury vapor. The curtain lies between teller and customer. Breaths are instantly sterilized. The light kills bacteria in less than a second.

The rays also kill germs on the upper surfaces of hands passing money through the window. They even kill the germs on the exposed side of the money.

Many other experiments with the tube lights were reported to the institute. Deryl Hart, M. D., surgeon-in-chief of Duke hospital, Durham, N. C., said the beams completely free the air of germs around a patient on the operating table.

Saves Lives of Patients.

Dr. Hart announced the beginnings of this operating room experiment two years ago, the first in medical history. Today he gave the results of 800 operations in air purified by the ultra-violet light. He said the death rate in these operations was cut from 5.5 per cent to 2.9.

Infections after breast operations were reduced from 31 per cent to 2.6. Infections after hernia operations were cut from 3.3 per cent to nothing.

In these three types of operations, fevers dropped respectively from 78 per cent to 22; from 54 to 21; and from 46 to 14.

Effective in Restaurants.

In drug stores and restaurants the lamps shining on shelves of clean glasses reduced germs on the rims from thousands to five or six.

The lamps have been tried and found effective in restaurants, bakeries for keeping food sterile, manufacturing plants for both food and personal articles, hen houses, dairies and hog pens.

STUDENT INJURED IN FALL OFF DAM

Morris Jones, Oglethorpe Senior, Plunges 40 Feet to Rocks at Silver Lake.

Losing his footing as he walked across the narrow rim of the dam at Silver lake on the campus of Oglethorpe University, Morris Jones, a 24-year-old senior, plunged to the foot of the dam on jagged rocks 40 feet below and was seriously injured yesterday.

He was taken to Grady hospital, where a companion, Glen Owens, 24, a senior at the university and captain of the varsity football team last fall, identified him. Jones was coach of the "B" football team at Oglethorpe.

Quick action of Owens probably saved Jones from death by drowning. When he reached Jones, his head was submerged in a pool of water at the edge of the rocks.

University authorities last night notified his parents in Kershaw, South Carolina.

Hospital physicians described Jones' condition as "very serious." He suffered concussion, a fractured arm and other injuries in the fall. Owens and other college mates of Jones were at his bedside all night.

Jones and Owens, both members of the Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity, were fishing in the lake yesterday afternoon when Jones decided to go to the other side of the lake by walking across the dam, about a foot wide at the top.

Owens said Jones faltered as he reached the middle of the dam where there is a slight step up. He then lost his balance completely and his body hurtled to the rocks below.

Horrified, Owens ran to the dam, scrambled down steep banks to the rocks below and brought the unconscious Jones to the bank of the lake and summoned aid. He found Jones lying face down on the rocks with his head under water.

Four Killed in Cuba In Conspiracy Raid

HAVANA, March 8.—(Tuesday.)—(AP)—Four alleged conspirators against the government were killed when Cuban troops raided a secret meeting inside a big cave at Cojimar, near here, it was reported officially early today. Several of the group fled. They were said to have been discussing a supposed conspiracy which army headquarters said they had learned of a week ago.

The dead were two civilians and two non-commissioned navy officers.

HEAD GIVES NOTICE LAW FIXES DELAY AT LEAST 15 DAYS

Three Days Allowed for Certification of Returns and State and Local Licenses Are Required.

1,274 IN FAVOR TO 197 AGAINST

Possession of One Quart of Spirits Permitted Under Recent Legislation.

Twenty-two years of prohibition came to an end in Georgia yesterday when Dougherty county, first to hold a local option election under the state's new liquor law, voted by more than six to one to legalize and tax whisky.

The unofficial count in Dougherty was 1,274 for legalization and 197 against repeal.

The vote removed Georgia from the list of dry states, leaving only Tennessee, Oklahoma, Mississippi and Kansas.

1,471 Cast Ballots.

A total of 1,471, more than half Dougherty's registered voters, cast secret ballots at two polling places yesterday. At one located at the courthouse, the wet vote was 1,216 to 177 for the drys, while at the other, in East Albany, the count was 59 for repeal and 20 against it.

In the larger precinct, balloting was separate for men and women. The vote in the women's booth was 413 for legalization and 92 against. The vote in the men's box was 802 in favor of repeal and 85 against.

Election officials said voting in Albany and Dougherty county was orderly and average.

With the death of the 22-year-old Georgia dry law, possession of one quart of legally stamped and sold whisky becomes legal anywhere in the state 15 days after the Dougherty vote is certified.

Two Quarts Daily Limit.

The Dougherty majority for legalization authorizes the sale, manufacture and taxation of liquor in Dougherty county. Under the state law, whisky can be sold only in unbroken packages of not less than half a pint. Sale of more than two quarts per day to one person by any dealer is also prohibited.

No regulations or license fees have been set up by the city of Albany or Dougherty county as yet, it was said. Authorities are to make provisions for the legal sale within the next week or so.

The wet victory in Dougherty

Prof. Thurman W. Arnold Named By Roosevelt for Anti-Trust Post

Author of 'Folklore of Capitalism' Nominated To Succeed R. H. Jackson.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—A few months ago Professor Thurman W. Arnold, of Yale, published a best-seller poking intellectual fun at America's handling of trusts and monopolies. Today President Roosevelt nominated him for the job of enforcing the anti-trust laws.

Arnold regards those statutes as a "ceremony of atonement" by which the country has been able to denounce its monopolies and have them too. His book, "The Folklore of Capitalism," published by Yale University Press, contended that the laws have actually encouraged monopoly, because ineffectual enforcement, providing an outlet for public indignation,

U. S. APPROVAL SEEN FOR CHILDREN'S AID

Fund of $46,000 Will Benefit Cripples in State, Says Murdaugh.

Federal approval of a plan to spend $46,000 to aid crippled children is expected soon, Lamar Murdaugh, state welfare director, announced yesterday.

Murdaugh said the program, a part of the Federal Social Security system and the state's welfare activities, was made possible by allocation of money during the recent special session of the legislature.

A total of $23,000 is on hand in federal funds, Murdaugh disclosed, and the state would provide an additional $23,000.

Miss Frances Steele, director of the division of child welfare, estimated the funds would provide treatment for from 200 to 225 crippled children.

All applications for aid would be made directly to the county welfare departments, Miss Steele said, rather than to state headquarters. Approximately 7,557 children are eligible for service.

The program is to be purely hospitalization and treatment, the welfare department announced, and would not include relief. Operations and treatment would be directed by recognized orthopedic surgeons, and all surgery would be conducted in accredited hospitals.

Murdaugh said $60,299 would be available from the federal government for matching by the state for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1938. He said this would cover approximately 600 children.

Gigantic Bonfire of Aged Autos Is on Exchange Week Program

"Survival of the fittest" is the slogan for Atlanta used car dealers this week as they plan the destruction of more than 100-odd cars in a gigantic bonfire at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at 980 West Marietta street, N. W.

The spectacle, predicted to be the biggest bonfire seen in modern Atlanta, is part of the city's observance of National Used Car Exchange Week, which opened Saturday and will continue throughout this week.

Cars considered unfit for service and too defective for safe driving will be pushed over a 50-foot cliff, saturated with gasoline and burned. Every dealer in Atlanta is to send to the junk heap the unsafe used cars taken in trade this week.

"The bonfire will be more than an exciting and spectacular sight," George M. Couch, president of the Atlanta Automobile Dealers' Association, sponsor of the event, said yesterday.

"It will illustrate in a most dramatic way one of the purposes of Used Car Exchange Week which is to rid the streets and highways of dangerous and out-of-date automobiles which have caused too large a share of accidents in the past."

He pointed out that 46,000 dealers throughout the country are cooperating this week to make it attractive to the public to trade for better and safer cars.

Meanwhile, from Chicago, D. D. Fennell, president of the National Safety Council, predicted the week's activities would aid materially in the cause of highway safety.

"Obsolete and unreliable cars are too often death traps, both for occupants and other motorists. There is no doubt that elimination of these cars and replacement by good used cars would increase the general safety of traffic." He estimated that more than 15 per cent of all traffic deaths are caused by defective vehicles.

In Atlanta all used car display rooms and lots in the city were thronged Saturday and yesterday by interested shoppers, Couch stated.

Throughout the sixth district last month, the agents seized 8,515 gallons of whisky, 302 stills and made 583 arrests.

Get at the Cause of Constipation!

You know that constipation often gives you that dopey, sunken, bogged down feeling. Why not get at the cause and fix it?

If you eat what most people do—things like bread, meat and potatoes—the chances are all that's the matter with you is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean what you may think. It's a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines that aids elimination.

If this is your trouble, what you need is a dish of crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need, plus Nature's intestinal tonic vitamin B_1, and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if the old world doesn't look a lot brighter! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Don't Be Penny-Wise and Aspirin-Foolish

There is never real economy in "cheapness." When pain and colds strike, take St. Joseph Aspirin—and enjoy the satisfaction of knowing that you are taking aspirin whose purity even exceeds the rigid requirements of the United States Pharmacopoeia.

McDaniel Will Retire From Turnkey's Job

Robert A. McDaniel, who for 18 years has ushered prisoners to police station cell blocks, is going to retire from his turnkey's job and settle down on his 80-acre farm near Stone Mountain, he said yesterday.

A mere 325 pounds, McDaniel has been on the city police force 27 years and his retirement becomes effective about April 1. He says the only time he was out for any length of time was when a peg-leg man kicked him with the wooden leg. He had to take a month off to recover.

McDaniel applied for pension yesterday. He said he will take his wife and grandchild to his farm after retirement becomes effective.

Woman, 76, Gets Electricity After 25 Years

185 Middle Georgia Families Receive Power for First Time.

By LEE FUHRMAN.

Mrs. Nannie Bell, 76-year-old resident of Spalding county, had electricity in her home last night—after waiting 25 years for it.

Mrs. Bell's was one of 185 farm homes in middle Georgia which yesterday received electric power for the first time, through the Central Georgia Electric Membership Corporation, a part of the federal government's Rural Electrification Administration.

Mrs. Bell, who lived on Route 72, 10 miles from Griffin, hopefully had her home wired a quarter of a century ago. At that time, there was talk a power line would be run into that section of the county.

Failed to Materialize.

But the line failed to materialize, and so Mrs. Bell's house, containing one of the best wiring jobs possible, remained without the needed "juice."

T. M. Childs, of Madison, inspector for the CGEMC, was just as happy as Mrs. Bell and her family at the fulfillment of the long-time dream.

"My job takes me into all these houses, inspecting the wiring," said Childs. "And that house has the best job I've seen in a long time. Whoever did it knew what he was doing. It seems a shame that wiring had to wait so long to be used."

Last night, however, the Bells had electric lights, and lamps were stored away with other mementos of by-gone years.

The power—11,950 volts of it—was sent humming through the wires into the rural homes at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Previously, linemen worked 45 minutes at the Bibb station, two miles from Jackson, making the necessary connections from the main supply line to the transformers and thence to the expectant users of the power.

On the ground, watching the linemen at work atop two poles 30 feet high, stood a small group of men.

Among them were W. L. Westbrook, of Macon, power company executive, and M. O. McCord, of Jackson, a director of the corporation and "daddy" of the idea. McCord was prime mover in the project about two years ago.

Within the next 30 days, it is hoped power will be sent into 400 more homes. Yesterday's power went into homes in Butts, Spalding, Lamar and Monroe counties. Other counties which will soon have power are Henry, Jasper and Morgan.

Plans call for an ultimate expenditure of about a million dollars for construction of 1,000 miles of lines, which eventually are expected to serve 3,400 families. New lines are expected to reach into Fayette, Putnam, Jones, Bibb and Fulton counties.

The project, proceeding east and west, starts about eight miles southwest of Madison and goes as far as Rover. North and south, it goes from Juliette to Locust Grove.

When the entire project is completed, a celebration will be held, Mr. McCord said.

Contrasts Announced.

Contrasts were announced as the power hummed through the lines.

There was the Collins' home, three miles from Griffin, on the Jackson highway, a three-room frame house. So far, this home has only electric lights. Later, the Collins hope to have modern electric equipment such as a range, washer, fans.

The Collins' home is occupied by Joseph A. Collins, a farmer; his wife, Jessie Elizabeth, and their four children, Margaret, five; Dorothy Ann, four; Merty Jean, two, and Lucille, nine months.

Then there was the home of Walter Touchstone, a prosperous farmer living at Rover. This home not only has electric lights, but a range, water heater, refrigerator, fans and heaters.

Modern Equipment.

McCord said that through the Electric Farm and Home Administration, farm families may obtain all modern electrical appliances, costing about $550.

Many tenant houses were among those getting power yesterday.

As the rural areas were getting a new servant — electricity—in their homes, Walter R. McDonald, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission, announced in Atlanta that the Georgia Power Company had filed a lowered commercial rate schedule, and had agreed to service improvements in the Jesup area.

Rates Revised.

McDonald said the commission had accepted the revised rates, and dismissed pending orders that the company show cause why rates should not be reduced.

He added, however, the commission would investigate possible further readjustment of the company's rates when an appraisal now underway is completed.

Reductions affected in the agreement yesterday will bring savings to small commercial users through direct reductions and to large commercial users through installation of the one meter system for customers now required to obtain current through two or more meters.

Out goes the oil lamp and on goes the electric light. The home of Mrs. Gertrude Spruce, on Route 72, 10 miles from Griffin, was one of 185 which last night had electricity for the first time, through the Central Georgia Electric Membership Corporation, part of the Rural Electrification Administation. Mrs. Spruce stored the lamp later, along with other mementos of bygone years.

PENITENTIARY INMATE SUED IN MAIL THEFTS

Civil action to recover $153.63 allegedly stolen in two Virginia post office robberies was begun in United States district court here yesterday when the federal government filed suit against Archie Jesse Austin, prisoner at the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

The government alleges the convicted man broke into the safe of the post office at Pleasant Ridge, Va., in July, 1934, and escaped with $102.07, and also entered the safe of the post office at Littleton, Va., on July 21, 1934, and escaped with $51.59.

LEADERS COMMENT ON DOUGHERTY VOTE

Wet Victory Expected by Drys, Say Bishop and Gaines of Result.

By the Associated Press.

Georgia wet and dry leaders commented last night on the Dougherty county liquor vote as follows:

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon, militant dry and head of the South Georgia Methodist Conference: Everybody knew Albany would go wet before the vote. That town has been wet since the year one. The Dougherty county returns do not give the slightest indication of sentiment throughout the state.

Spence M. Grayson, Chatham (Savannah) county representative and co-author of the liquor bill—Dougherty county is the first step in the election, control and regulation of liquor, and will provide the revenue the state needs so badly.

W. W. Gaines, of Atlanta, head of the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition in Georgia: We were not expecting anything else but that Dougherty county would go wet overwhelmingly. Earlier, Gaines had said "we expect to win in the end."

George Sabados, of Albany, temperance committee chairman of the state house of representatives: There are many good features in the new law that are not known to the public generally, which when properly enforced, will, in my opinion, increase the cause of temperance. The grand juries will at all times have opportunity and authority to review the conduct of those charged with the enforcement of this new act.

DOUGHERTY COUNTY VOTES FOR REPEAL

Commissioner Head Warns Against Sales for at Least 15 Days.

state's prohibition law and makes possession of one quart of liquor legal, Commissioner T. Grady Head said yesterday afternoon.

Before the unofficial count of the Dougherty county ballot yesterday was made, he issued the following statement:

"Should Dougherty county vote to tax and control the sale of whisky, no whisky can be sold or possessed legally in Georgia until 15 days have elapsed after the results of the election have been officially declared, and not then unless such whisky has moved through a state-controlled warehouse, bears a revenue stamp of the state of Georgia and is distributed by a duly authorized, licensed dealer.

"Such a dealer is required to produce a license from local authorities and from the State Department of Revenue and to comply with other local and state regulations."

He had not made public any regulations formulated by the State Revenue Department, or said whether the state has a state-controlled warehouse ready for handling legal liquor.

Certification of the Dougherty vote must be made to the secretary of state within three days.

If the high court should rule the local option law unconstitutional, the election in Dougherty would be invalidated and although several other refenda already have been called later this month Georgia would automatically remain in the ranks of the nation's dry states.

Residents of Dougherty county started polling their ballots at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. The vote was reported light during the morning and early afternoon, but the count had risen to more than 1,200 before 4 o'clock. There were approximately 2,800 persons registered to vote in the election.

Wet in Last Election.

In the liquor referendum last June 8, Dougherty voted 1,057 for repeal and 354 against it.

In the 1935 referendum, the vote was approximately the same.

Dougherty and its county site, Albany, famous as a resort city, has been an oasis of dry Georgia for a number of years.

Whisky had been sold openly there for a long time, similar to the open sales in Savannah and Chatham county. However, the dealers in Albany were not licensed by the city as those in Augusta have been.

Repealists won their first legal victory in Dougherty county Saturday when Judge B. C. Gardner, of the superior court, refused to grant dry lawyers an injunction barring the election yesterday.

The jurist upheld the constitutionality of the Georgia local option liquor act, holding that, contrary to the contention of the drys, the subject matter of the law came within the call of Governor Rivers for the special legislative session in which it was passed.

Liquor was not mentioned in that call, but Judge Gardner said that the Governor called for legislation on taxation and changes of penal laws.

Drys Raise Barriers.

The group of prohibition lawyers, headed by W. W. Gaines, of Atlanta; Representative L. A. Whipple, of Bleckley county, and others, have sought to enjoin the elections in nearly every county where they have been called.

Hearings on injunction pleas are scheduled in seven counties this month. These are Baker, Berrien, McIntosh, Pierce, Upson, Quitman and Coffee. Scheduled elections are set for March 30 in Fulton, March 18 in Chatham and Muscogee, March 11.

Prohibition lawyers have declared they would take their case to the supreme court of Georgia for the final decision on the constitutionality of the new law.

Plans were being made by them to appeal to the high court the decision of Judge Gardner, it was said.

What their action will be in the three counties thus far not enjoined is not known. Gaines said the turn of events would decide their course of action.

DOUGHERTY SOLONS BOTH VOTED WET

Dougherty county yesterday in its liquor election followed the lead of its legislative delegation in voting wet.

When the liquor bill was before the house of representatives, Representatives George Sabados and A. N. Durden, of Albany, voted "aye" for legalization. Sabados is chairman of the house temperance committee and was instrumental in pushing the liquor bill through.

Liquor Issue Voters Must Pay Poll Taxes

All persons over 21 who have registered and paid poll taxes by Thursday are eligible to cast votes in Fulton county's referendum on legalization of whisky on March 30, Stuart P. Murray, chairman of the Fulton repeal committee, asserted yesterday.

As businessmen and members of the committee mapped plans for laying the question of legalization and taxation of liquor before Fulton voters, Murray urged anyone who wishes to vote to make certain poll taxes are paid.

Persons who never have voted are eligible to cast ballots in this important election if they register and pay poll taxes by Thursday, he said.

A steady stream of persons qualifying came to the county registrar's windows yesterday.

WPA OFFICIAL CITES NEED FOR RELIEF AID

200,000 Destitute Rural Cases in Cotton States, Says Assistant.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Large numbers of rural families "are experiencing serious privation," Corrington Gill, assistant administrator of the Works Progress Administration, said today.

Testifying before the senate unemployment committee, he said the present economic slump has produced a "deluge of applications" for rural relief, "without precedent except during the depths of the depression."

Some 3,500,000 rural families "or more than one out of every four," were on "public assistance" at some time during the past few years, he said.

At present "the unmet need is most acute in the cotton states, where it is estimated that 200,000 destitute rural cases are receiving no form of aid."

WEATHER BALKS AIRLINER SEARCH

Planes Grounded by Fog as Hope for Missing Ship Wanes.

FRESNO, Cal., March 7.—(AP)—Treacherous weather and the snow-filed chasms of the great Sierra Nevada range still shrouded the resting place of a passenger plane and its nine occupants tonight, six days after the ship vanished in a rainstorm.

There was no new clue to where the big plane might be found; there was no new hope that the nine persons might survive.

Searching planes fanned out over an ever-widening area today until fog closed in and forced them to their bases. Ground crews, hemmed in by a storm, withdrew to camps.

All awaited a turn in the weather that would permit searching parties to again take up the trail of the lost airliner. There was no inclination to give up.

CHARGES DROPPED IN DAUGHTRY CASE

This is coming up before the Millen judge on March 17.

Daughtry disappeared last September. His bullet-punctured body was found a few days later in a gloomy, moss-hung turpentine swamp. It was November 16 when the indictments were returned.

Cobb charged the accusation was inspired by a plot based on greed and hatred, and that there were political ramifications. Miss Daughtry, who left her home 20 years ago and was not heard from until after her father's death, surrendered to police. All the defendants said they were innocent.

The state gained continuance of the trial originally set for January 3.

"Thoroughly Planned."

Today, asking for the second continuance, Solicitor General Neville said "Justice cannot be properly preserved by going to trial now," adding, the slaying "was thoroughly planned and executed and it cannot be solved overnight."

G. C. Dekle, of Millen, defense counsel, charged the state with stalling and asserted, "I have assumed that when an indictment was returned, the state had some evidence and didn't need additional time to prepare its case."

Neville said the state was not ready "at this time" and asserted R. Lee Moore, of Statesboro, assisting in the prosecution, was ill and "has much of the information that is essential."

He immediately moved to nol prosse the indictments when the continuance was refused.

Five Congratulated.

As the decision was announced, crowds of the spectators surged forward to congratulate the five defendants, who were seated in the courtroom.

Today's actions were among many taken in the case since it was initiated. In one, the defendants were denied bail. In another, a second bond hearing was blocked on the order of Judge William Woodrum on a jurisdictional point. In a third, the defendants were granted bail and made it.

Last month, Judge Woodrum, who disqualified himself in the case, cited Cobb for contempt over a book he wrote about the case and fined him $200 and sentenced him to 20 days in jail. Another contempt citation was issued returnable March 17.

PWA TO CONTINUE POWER PLANT AID

Reject Willkie Suggestion That Municipal Grants Await TVA Deals.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Officials of the Public Works Administration refused today to hold up financial assistance for municipal power projects in the Tennessee valley while the TVA is negotiating for the purchase of private utilities in that area.

Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, had requested that the PWA refrain for 60 or 90 days from making grants to the municipal plants. He had asked also that no utility properties be duplicated during a like period, while the negotiations scheduled to start Friday were under way.

Wrecking Effort Charged.

Clark Foreman, power director of the Public Works Administration, replied that private utilities were "doing everything in their power" to wreck the program of municipal power development in the TVA area.

The PWA officials said it was quite apparent to him that Willkie was seeking merely to "spike" the program.

"As far as I can determine," Foreman told reporters, "there has been no inclination on the part of the municipalities to take Mr. Willkie's proposal seriously. They apparently regard it as just another attempt to waylay the whole program of giving the cities in the Tennessee valley cheap public power. Therefore, they are going ahead with their construction programs."

He said there was nothing in the past to indicate Willkie was sincere in asking the delay.

PWA To "Stand Pat."

Another aide to Secretary Ickes said the Public Works Administration would "stand pat" on its offers to finance municipal plants in the Tennessee valley and other sections. Approximately $14,015,675 of public works money was involved in the Tennessee valley project, officials said.

Another development in the TVA situation was a renewed demand by Representative Snell, of New York, the house Republican leader, that congress investigate the power authority.

WATER RATES RAISED.

AMERICUS, March 7.—Americus water consumers will pay higher rates effective April 1. In order to provide needed revenue as a result of losses from homestead exemptions, city council has voted to hike minimum rates from $3 per quarter to $3.75, and to reduce the gallonage allowed from 10,000 gallons to 7,500 gallons each three months. The raise in rates amounts to an increase of approximately 33 1-3 per cent.

ELBERT OUSTER TRIAL DELAYED UNTIL TODAY

ELBERTON, March 7.—(AP)—The impeachment trial of Sheriff John A. Starke, of Elbert county, was recessed this afternoon until tomorrow to give acting Sheriff C. O. McCurry an opportunity to locate an Elbert county couple requred as witnesses.

Joseph McGinty and J. T. Sisk, attorneys for the prosecution, requested the recess after a jury had been completed in the case.

The impeachment petition filed January 14 for two ministers listed as the Rev. W. H. Rich and the Rev. J. C. West, charged Starke failed to keep a record of business transactions in his office, sold "protection" to the Elbert county couple and advised violation of an injunction against them.

ALUMINUM

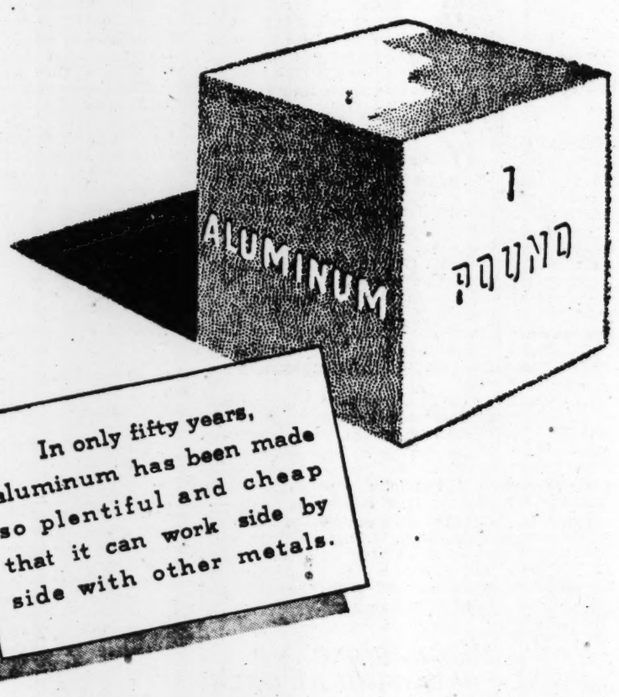

IS CHEAP BECAUSE IT WAS DEVELOPED

THE AMERICAN WAY

Most of our common metals were in everyday use thousands of years ago.

SAFETY PINS WERE MADE OF IRON AND COPPER (BRONZE) BEFORE 1000 B. C.

In only fifty years, aluminum has been made so plentiful and cheap that it can work side by side with other metals.

FACTS ABOUT ALUMINUM INTEREST EVERYBODY

The American way is to create something useful to everyone and make a lot of it, getting the price down so low that everyone can buy. Working that way, an industry can't help growing.

If we had been satisfied to make only a little aluminum, its price might still be several dollars a pound instead of 20 cents.

In fifty years, starting from scratch, aluminum has been made a common metal of everyday usefulness—right up alongside other metals, which had a head start of thousands of years.

The reason for this rapid growth has been the freedom of incentive which is the birthright and challenge of American industry. In this instance it has been accomplished in spite of the difficulties of getting aluminum out of its ore in a country where the raw materials and the electric power needed for the process are very widely separated.

Research, development and constructive salesmanship have played their part in making the United States the greatest peace-time consumer of aluminum in the world.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 8, 1938.

MEASURE OF GREATNESS

In view of the too prevalent attitude among certain types of officialdom and the general public to regard the executives of "big business," as creatures of different mold from average men, it is well to remember that, after all, responsibility, large income and high position do not change the character or personality of the man worthy of his post.

Neither the highest among government officials, federal, state or municipal, nor the greatest of industrial tycoons, imagines himself as fit subject for crown and scepter, if he is worthy of his job. Such men would not be where they are, if they ever forgot they are but men among their fellows.

Experienced newspaper reporters, accustomed to interviewing men and women in all walks of life, know that the greater the man the easier he is to contact, to talk with and to make a friend. It is the intrinsically small man, temporarily elevated to a position he is not really qualified to fill, who tries to impress others with his importance and who regards himself as a creature of superior clay. Who becomes, in short, a "stuffed shirt."

It is axiomatic that no man can fully express his own personality or his own capacity, in any role, who does not fully realize there are many other men, potentially, at least, just as fine as he in character, in ability and in manhood, who earn only $25 a week or less. No matter to what heights a man may climb in the materialistic world, he is a failure if he loses the human contact with average men of high or low degree.

Ever since the trust-busting days of the "big stick" there has been a too easy tendency in the United States to blame all economic ills on that indefinite shadow, "big business." That ancient bugaboo is the ever ready target of all demagogues, a target largely created only for the purpose of providing a metaphorical red-herring to divert attention from topics the demagogue would avoid.

It is high time intelligent Americans awoke to the fact that, in most cases, the men at the top in business or industry today began as humble workers in the ranks and won their promotions through the combination of unusual ability, a voracious appetite for hard work and fortuitous circumstances. There are a few exceptions to the rule but, in almost every case, the high salaried executive of today was the private in the economic army of yesterday.

Add to this knowledge the realization that the worthy leader never forgets his origins and is intrinsically a "regular fellow," anxious only to be accepted as "one of the gang," by other regulars, and the needless fear of Machiavellian motives by "big business" will happily fade from the national sentiment, ushering in a better day of understanding and co-operation for all citizens of a truly democratic country.

BRIDGE-TABLE HORRORS

Once upon a time a body could learn a card game with a fair chance of being able to play it without interference, other than casual kibitzing, for the remainder of his natural life. That time, alack-a-day, was long ago and now takes its place in history with fairy tales and ostrich feather hats.

It was in the days before whist degenerated into duplicate whist. From duplicate whist it was but an easy step to bridge. As machines speeded the tempo of our civilization, so did card games speed our descent to Avernus. Plain bridge yielded the tables to auction bridge; auction bridge fell before the sweeping onslaught of contract bridge. Contract bridge seemed to have things stopped for a time, but then accountants took up the game and invented devious methods of scoring, after which, heaping coals on fevered brows, came conventions, signals, informative bids and other gadgets replete with everything save mirrors and horns. A once pleasant pastime became something that made strong men weep.

And now, in the midst of all other world troubles, comes five-suit bridge. Cards of the new suit bear a solid green crown and are called "royals," the highest suit in the deck. You can also play poker with this new deck, experts say. It should make red dog, down the river, sevens and jacks, deuces, wild, double up, freeze-out and wild widow seem like weak coffee.

Scoring has been changed, too. But we can't go into that. Life is too short. From a casual glance, however, it is evident the recession should soon be over for the makers of those trick calculating machines on which they've been figuring our social security payments.

What, next, is in the cards?

THE FEDERAL LICENSING BILL

The machinery of American business, already slipping cogs because of "monkey-wrench" legislation, faces further handicaps in the federal licensing bill proposed by Senators Borah and O'Mahoney.

The measure, now in the hands of a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee, is the subject of a brief argument in opposition just filed by Prentiss H. Terry, executive vice president of the Southern States Industrial Council. This organization represents about 15,000 manufacturers located in the 15 southern states, and its representations as to the harmful effect to be expected from the licensing measure may be regarded as voicing the general attitude of the south.

The timeliness of the protest of the Southern States Industrial Council and the threat of the Borah-O'Mahoney and similar measures to the rank and file of southern citizenry are emphasized by the fact that the south is the last frontier of the small business man, in whose behalf so many gestures have been made of late, but for whom very little actually has been done in the matter of urgently needed relief.

Mr. Terry points out that there are, according to the 1935 federal census of manufacturers, 26,378 manufacturing establishments in the areas represented in the membership of the council. These are widely scattered and represent, to a large extent, the typical small manufacturing plant of the country.

The small business man, who is the friendly neighbor of the average citizen, has, with typical American courage, persisted in trying to exist in a bewildering maze of whirring regulatory buzz saws. In the south, analyses show, 85 per cent of the manufacturing plants employ not more than 50 persons each. The limits of operations of these plants restrict production, of course, but tend to increase co-operation and to stimulate greater harmony in industrial relations than is possible in larger enterprises in which personal interest is a less dominant factor. The average business organization in the south, therefore, has become more of a commercial or industrial family than an economic mechanism.

It is against this background that another shadow falls as the Borah-O'Mahoney licensing bill impends. "Not only," says Mr. Terry, "would there be conflict with existing federal laws, but there would be conflict as well with state laws and the provisions of state charters, without relief to business organizations from the burdens, restrictions and nuisance levies of individual states."

The bill, designed to provide fair competition among manufacturers, does not contemplate, it is contended, the inclusion of corporations whose gross assets are $100,000 or less. This would seem, at first glance, to eliminate most of the establishments of the south. However, there is one title which specifically provides for placing under the provisions of the measure any "competing organizations" which do not conform "to the conditions of fair competition."

There's the rub, as Mr. Terry points out. Every effort would be made by majority competitors in other sections of the country to obtain uniform standards throughout the nation, to the entire disregard of natural and economic differences between the different areas of the United States. "Neither the Federal Trade Commission nor any other commission," he says, "could possibly give proper consideration to the variable factors involved."

Experiences under NRA are still fresh in the memories of business men of the south, many of whom "folded up" and many others of whom were "rolled up." It is to the best interests of the average citizen of the south that the federal licensing bill be defeated, for it would add one more burden to business, whether large or small, already under the avalanche of work and expense incident to the social security, national labor relations and tax laws.

Every penny added to the expense of business invariably is passed on in an increase in the cost of the bread and butter of the men, women and children who are America.

Britons assure us we make too much of Old World disorder. If Hitler pushes the frontier into Austria and points east, it's only a paperhanger deciding on a different border.

H. G. Wells wishes we wouldn't quote him as predicting events beyond 1940. He is trying to let history catch up, which is only fair.

A Missouri Valley basketballer is so tall he virtually inserts the ball in the basket. These are high-handed tactics, though legal perhaps.

Later developments take some of the edge from Hitler's southward drive. What was called a bloodless coup may be no more than straight anemia.

An observer in China thinks there will be further bombing of Japanese territory. The Emperor hasn't apologized yet for that last two-line poem.

Editorial of the Day

AMERICAN FREIGHT RATES

(From The Spartanburg Herald-Journal)

American railroads are in serious financial distress. They admit it and are asking for relief. They declare they are not over-capitalized and submit statistics to prove the truth of their statement. They have been urged to operate shorter trains but say that it is an unjust demand because it will not make for safety and the employment of additional men would increase their financial troubles. The roads now employ more than 950,000 persons.

What American railroads want, in order that they may get out of their financial difficulties, pay adequate wages, give first class service and prevent accidents is an increase in freight rates. The desired increase is opposed by many shippers, but the roads direct attention to the fact that they haul freight for less than it is hauled in any of the leading countries.

Japan alone has lower freight rates than those in the United States. Even in Mexico, China and India, with the cheapest of labor railroad rates are higher than in this country. The average rate in Europe for transporting a ton of freight a distance of one mile is 2.68 cents. In the United States it is .94 cents per ton-mile. That makes a good showing for American roads.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NEW DEAL CONFLICT WASHINGTON, March 7.—Five years ago last Friday, President Roosevelt arranged a rather odd companionate marriage between machine politics and the forces of the left—labor, the intellectual liberals, the hungry farmers and the rest. This singular union, usually called the New Deal, flourished wonderfully for a long time.

Of late, however, the partners in the New Deal household have developed a tendency to toss the furniture at one another. Labor and the other left-wing groups were once content merely to dictate the policies of the partnership. Now, labor and the liberals have reached out for control of the actual political machinery, for offices and jobs.

The owners of the political machinery, the local Democratic bosses who have fattened so richly in the last five years, are fighting back hard. The conflict is still in its first stages, but it is immensely important. It clearly foreshadows the kind of struggle for control of the Democratic party which is almost certain to strew the land with political corpses in the year or so before 1940.

The conflict has broken out for three very simple reasons. The glamor of the President's leadership has been tarnished by the new depression. His power to unite his excitable followers has been weakened by the fact that he is now in his second term. And the approach of the elections next November has stirred the political madness in every man's blood.

SELECTED SHAMBLES In Pennsylvania, John L. Lewis and his CIO have hurled a huge monkey wrench into the works of the political juggernaut constructed by Senator Joseph F. Guffey. The mighty Democratic machine in Pennsylvania, designed to use organized labor as its chief motive force, is now confronted with the gubernatorial candidacy of Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

In spite of the most prayerful pressure, Mr. Lewis has insisted on running Mr. Kennedy for Governor. And he has been so hard-hearted about it because he wants to build in Pennsylvania a political organization answerable only to labor, on the model of the American Labor party in New York. Always foresighted, he began the job more than a year ago. In several key cities in the state, he already has labor's nonpartisan league clubs numerous and strong enough to serve as the skeleton of his proposed organization.

Mr. Lewis' ambition, about which he and his CIO advisers are perfectly frank in private, is more than likely to make a shambles of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania. The rulers of the Democratic organization have answered Mr. Lewis' threat by rebelling against their former despot, Senator Guffey, whom they considered too cozy with Mr. Lewis, and nominating a strictly machine gubernatorial candidate of their own.

Almost the same pattern exists in the other great key state, New York. There the American Labor party came to power in the last city election. The left-wing advisers of the White House have proposed to use the strategic labor party votes to elect their own candidate, Robert H. Jackson, to the governorship.

And the owners of the big political machines in the state have gone after Mr. Jackson, tooth and claw. Ed Flynn, satrap of the Bronx, once one of the most cherished New Deal leaders, has joined the bosses' anti-Jackson battalion of death, and the unsavory O'Connells in Albany are out for blood. Once more the problem at the very heart of the conflict is the future control of the Democratic party.

THE INDIANA GAME Labor and the liberals are by no means the only aggressors, either. Out of Indiana, not so many days ago, came Paul V. McNutt and his political backers, rich with the dollars indirectly contributed to their war chest by the Indiana taxpayers, roaring with a loud confidence in their own future. The new Indiana gang has been treated as a grandiose joke, but it should be recalled that Warren Gamaliel Harding and the Ohio gang once captured the government.

The truth is that the astute Frank McHale, political manager of the McNuttites, started some time ago shopping around for delegates to the 1940 convention. And the men whom he is visiting on his shopping trips are precisely the machine bosses who are battling with labor and the liberals.

Mr. McHale may well succeed when he visits Ed Flynn or the O'Connells, the new Pennsylvania leaders, the malodorous Kelly-Nash junta in Chicago, the Long ring in Louisiana, Boss Crump in Memphis, the aboriginal Tom Pendergast in Kansas City, or Fuehrer Frank Hague in New Jersey. Mr. McHale can say to the bosses:

"You'd better come in with us, or, the first thing you know, you'll get someone in 1940 who isn't our kind of guy or your kind of guy at all."

Of course, the really interesting puzzle presented by the new conflict is just where it will leave the New Deal. Unfortunately, it's a puzzle which only time can solve.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

An ode? Oh, Gee!
Oh, Hum! Let' see:

The March wind brings
A roundelay
By birds and bees and crooning trees.
The March wind sings
"Another day
Of words," while leas
And moon-splashed seas,
Keep calling me.

And though you know
That I would never shirk,
These odes to March
Are far too much like work.

Meet
Mister Durigan.

For this morning's Silhouette your old perpetrator of the trade mark rhymes was badly stumped. Then, galloping to the rescue like a Round Table minstrel of old, came Hugh Durigan, of The Constitution copy desk staff. He placed the manuscript of the above before my eyes.

Eureka! Salvation, rescue, succor and what not.

So, please read Brother Durigan's effusion, above, once again and admit, like I did, it's durn good.

This Is Worthy Of Special Comment.

Went, the other morning, to the federal building to make the income tax return to Uncle Sam. I had filled in a blank form, best I knew how. Form 1040A. Eased myself into position before one of the polite young gentlemen there to aid in the onerous task. Asked him, modestly, to correct my own efforts and make out the return for me, as it should be done.

He went through and discovered two items of exemption I'd overlooked myself! Thereby effecting a worth-while saving for the old Jones pocket, but likewise depriving Uncle Sam himself of enough money, perhaps, to buy a can of polish for the knob on the door of the office of the high admiral of our own navee.

Interesting and a revealing sidelight on the really fine consideration we citizens get, after all. Isn't it?

Now I've yet to go to the capitol for the state income tax returns.

Wonder how I'll fare with Papa Georgia?

They'll Need
A Big Building.

There is an organization, with headquarters at Room 236, Biltmore hotel, New York, entitled "World Center for Women's Archives, Inc." From a letter written by Chairman Inez Haynes Irwin, "This organization is collecting from hidden and forgotten places original records and documents pertaining to the ideas, interests and achievements of women, of all countries and of all times."

Whew! That, my friends, is some task. Imagine the magnitude, "of all countries and of all times."

Would you, I ask you, like the job of collecting the records and documents referring to the achievements of women since the world began? Stupendous, I call it.

Quoting again from the same letter it is stated the present great need of the organization is for the means adequately to house and maintain these valuable records and to facilitate a very active clearing house service. So, the board of directors is making a nation-wide appeal for funds and will gratefully accept contributions, large or small, at the address given above.

Once again I am appalled at the size of the undertaking.

Some architect and some building contractor is going to be faced with the problem of the centuries if sufficient funds ever are contributed.

For think of the size of the building needed to properly house all the records of women's achievements "of all countries and of all times."

You think of it. It staggers me.

The Need Is There,
Beyond Question.

You can work out your own comment on this item.

I have received an invitation to attend the ninth session of the Oriental Culture Summer College of Tokyo, to be held at Tokyo, Karuizawa and Nojiri-Ko, in Japan, from July 11 to August 5, this year.

From the prospectus I quote the purpose of the institution:

"To promote international friendship and universal peace—"

A worthy cause, of course. Most worthy. And I sincerely hope it makes progress toward the goal set. But I do wonder how many Chinese have been invited to attend.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Flood Disaster LOS ANGELES, March 7.—About a year ago the Ohio river climbed out of its channel, spread over the neighborhood country and brought the army, the Red Cross, the national guard and the naval reserves rushing to the rescue. Boats were shipped in from Maine, Chesapeake Bay and Chicago. The local man-power was mobilized for labor and rescue all along the flood area and the whole nation aroused itself over a dramatic disaster.

There has been a somewhat similar mishap in this region. Following heavy rains the local streams, some of which were dry beds at certain times of the year, began to rip and slash along their courses. Wednesday morning word began to spread that a flood was forming and by noon at the Santa Fe station the Chief, the fast, nickel-plated train from the east, was posted as indefinitely late. The Chief was only a few miles out of town but was stalled at a bridge while railroad engineers walked out to inspect the supports. The Chief never got across, for the bridge was carried away in sight of passengers and the train was slowly and carefully rerouted over the Southern Pacific tracks for a short journey which took four hours.

By that time, in the streets of Los Angeles, water was spouting up through the manholes from overloaded drainage sewers and people who lived in the suburbs were worrying about the roads home or planning to stay in town. By morning a disaster had struck in some vague hinterland described as "back there" and at this writing the blow is something of yesterday, which happened somewhere else. The sun is shining, the streets of the city and Hollywood are dry, the actors, with smear on their faces and lace on their sleeves, are sparking the gal and storming the moat.

Strange Experience It is a strange experience to be in a city cut off from the outside by the destruction of great works and surrounded by ruin and tragedy, yet unperturbed and uninterrupted in the routine of life and the ordinary interests. Indifference may not be the word, for that suggests a heartless disinterest in misfortune.

The horses ran in the rain at Santa Anita while the flood was taking life and the radio was chattering incoherent bulletins in a tone which was intended to be merely nonalarmist but overemphasized optimism to a misleading degree. Where I have been was no shortage of food, water or liquor, no pause of professional or personal rivalry, no sight of sentries or men in sodden clothes heaving sandbags on the main streets and even now the flood, to many who were neighbors to it, is only something of which they read in the papers.

The explanation lies partly in the abruptness and brevity of the blow, which was over and done before it could be talked up in the mass imagination. But another element is the guest or tourist psychology of the thousands who come to this fair but troubled land to get rich and even after years in town will speak of some other where as home and of the community as "they," not "we," after all. It wasn't "our" flood but "theirs."

AUSTRALIA.

Dr. C. J. Tinsley, pastor of Stanmore Baptist church, Sydney, Australia, sends me the 150th anniversary edition of the Sydney Mail—one of the finest examples of journalism, both in technique and content, I have ever seen. There are color plates in this anniversary edition of the historic Australian newspaper that any engraver would delight to produce. The entire edition breathes a romance of valour and chivalry.

Captain Arthur Phillip landed at Botany Bay, January 18, 1788, and went ashore to unfurl the flag on a slope of Sydney cove. They erected the first government house of canvas, unloaded their stores from the battered ship, and went to work clearing the scrub. And thus began the story of Australia 150 years ago. Today a great civilization crowns the work of the brave men and women who gave their lives in heroic service. The story is too full and far-reaching to be reviewed in this brief space. Perhaps this 150th anniversary will awaken our interest sufficiently to direct attention to special reading from any available sources on our good neighbors in Australasia.

Captain Phillip sailed on October 24, 1786, in the old East Indian ship, Sirius—a 600-ton ship that had seen many years of strenuous service. This old ship—known as the flagship of the first fleet—was wrecked in 1790. The anchor, recovered from Norfolk island, is mounted in Macquarie Place, Sydney. I have been thrilled as I have read the story of Captain Phillip in the anniversary edition of The Mail, written by Professor S. H. Roberts, of Sydney University.

Other notable pioneers in the settlement of Australia, including Sir Joseph Banks, George Bass, Matthew Flinders, Captain William Bligh, Captain John Hunter, Captain Gavin Hamilton, William Lawson, Gregory Blaxland, William Charles Wentworth, Ernest Giles, John McKinlay, John Oxley, Sir Thomas Mitchell, Allan Cunningham, Edward John Eyre, Sir A. C. Gregory, Robert Burke, William John Wills, Alfred William Howitt, Captain Charles Sturt, Captain David Collins, Major George Johnston, Ludwig Leichhardt, Hamilton Hume, William Hilton Hovell, John MacArthur, Governor Lachlan Macquarie, and others are described in this valuable anniversary edition.

My good friend, Dr. Tinsley, while on a visit to Atlanta a few years ago, said, "One must visit Australia to gain any adequate conception of the sweep and scope of that vast young empire. We want you to come." And more than ever, I want to go.

A deer grazing in a forest clearing is a picture of care-fre contentment. But a little breeze wanders into the clearing, bring ing with it the scent of another wild creature, and instantly th deer lifts its head in wild alarm and goes bounding away down th wind.

How did it recognize danger? It had never been wounded c attacked or even closely approached by the unseen creature fro which it fled.

Yet it knew by instinct—by the age-long experience of its race—that sudden and awful death was near when that scent gav warning.

In the washroom of a Pullman car you meet a charming stran ger who seems the kind of person you would value as a frien He seems to be equally attracted by you, and you are exchangin bits of personal history when another man enters the washroom.

The newcomer offers several remarks to start a conversatio and then asks your opinion of some foreign leader.

With the indiscreet frankness of one born in a free country, yo give it—eloquently, forcefully, with the help of adjectives. Yo even volunteer evidence to support it.

Then your eyes turn to the charming person who seemed s desirable as a friend, and you are as startled as the deer was. Hi face is flushed; his eyes are blazing with wrath. You have be come his enemy.

What is the explanation? Isn't every man entitled to his opin ion? Why should one care what another thinks of this or that Isn't it foolish to be disturbed because another's thoughts do nc agree with yours? Is not an opinion a harmless thing, withou form or substance?

It might be so, if all were wise and just and kind.

But the man scents danger. He is guided by an instinct as tru as the deer's. A thousand generations of bitter experience hav taught him that the opinions of men are based at last on thei interests, and an opinion contrary to his represents an interest con trary to his. THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"O Love, what hours were mine and thine
In land of palm and southern pine!"

When Lady Astor was vacationing in southern Florida last month her favorite topic of conversation with southerners was the need of drastic and immediate measures to preserve the south's forests. She couldn't have been Nancy Astor and not have been both vivid and imaginative on the subject but what interests us is her interest itself. Everywhere, it would seem, people are looking upon the great paper industry developing in the south as an economic revolution, and upon the forest conservation problem creat d by that development as an economic crisis. At the recent annual convention of the American Pulpwood Association in New York, Chief E. W. Tinker, of the state forestry division of the United States Forest Service, told the delegates that from talks with southern Governors and senators he could report that "something in public control with respect to cutting" was imminent.

This column doesn't seem to have any influence. After coming out, gently but firmly, against the (to us) hateful expression "southland," readers keep on writing to vow, much less gently and mo firmly, that they love the expre sion and mean to go on using come hell, high water, and us boot. "What! No 'southland'," e claims Mr. Smith, of Jacksonvil "Would you abolish the 'Red Hil of Georgia' and call them 'the Fe ric Undulates of the Tertiary Would you drain the 'Marshes Glynn' and call it 'Zeeland?' The are 'south's' that girt the globe Mongolia has one, and Sou America, and the South Sea islan and South Chicago. But, thar Heaven, there is only one 'sout land'!"

Mr. Smith closes by quotin some famous words of Atlanta Dr. Hawthorne many years ag "Thank God I know a north, thar God I know an east and wes thank God I know a southland under whose blue canopy I fir saw the light of day and und whose moss-bowered magnolias hope to sleep!" We are indebte to Mr. Smith, and impressed, b we still think "southland" a sopp and undesirable expression and w still propose that people who wa to speak of the south call it "th south."

Question Box On the Bible

By W. L. PETTINGILL.

THE CONQUEST OF JERICHO.

Q. Do you really believe that the walls of Jericho fell down flat because the Children of Israel marched around those walls once a day for six days, and then seven times on the seventh day, as recorded in the 6th chapter of Joshua?

A. I verily believe that the walls of Jericho fell down flat after the people of Israel had marched around the city once a day for six days, and seven times on the seventh day, and after the priests had blown the trumpets and the people had shouted as commanded by Joshua. I believe all that. Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God, even by such means, should cause the walls of a city to fall down flat? There is great significance in the story of the conquest of Jericho. The central teaching is that by means esteemed foolish in the eyes of man God accomplishes His results. It is even so with the relation to the Gospel of Christ which is looked upon as a foolish thing. "For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God. . . . Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world? For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. For the Jews require a sign and the Greeks seek after wisdom; but we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness; but unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ th power of God, and the wisdom God. Because the foolishness God is wiser than men, and th weakness of God is stronger tha men" (1 Cor. 1:18-25). The poi is that the gospel which the wor considers to be foolishness is th only means by which men can b saved from sin. And when I sa "saved from sin" I am not no speaking of being saved from he Salvation includes deliveranc from hell in the future, but salva tion also delivers from sin he and now. And it is all don through that foolish thing calle the Gospel of Christ which is eve "the power of God unto salvatio to everyone that believeth: to th Jew first, and also to the Greek (Rom. 1:16, 17).

Farm Control Questions

The Constitution, in co-operation with the Georgia Extension Service, presents here another set in a series of questions and answers designed to clarify for Georgia farmers the recently-enacted cotton and tobacco farm program.

Q. How much of our cotton crop is exported?

A. From one-third to one-half of the United States cotton crop usually is exported annually.

Q. Will producers of Sea Island cotton be permitted to vote in the March 12 referendum on marketing quotas?

A. No, not unless they also produced some short staple cotton in 1937. The act specifically exempts cotton of 1 1-2 inch staple of longer from its provisions. Sea Island cotton is included in the long staple cotton to which the act does not apply.

Q. What is the exact question that will appear on the ballots to be used in the March 12 referenda on marketing quotas for cotton and flue-cured tobacco?

A. The exact question on the cotton ballot is: "Do you favor marketing quotas for cotton in 1938?" and the exact question on the flue-cured tobacco ballot is: "Do you favor flue-cured tobacco marketing quotas for 1938?"

Q. Will farmers who are planning to grow cotton or flue-cured tobacco for the first time in 1938 receive allotments under the new farm act?

A. Yes, provision is made for cotton and tobacco allotments to new growers in 1938 but these allotments will be very small as the act directs that the bulk of the allotments be given to farmers who have been growing these crops all along.

Q. If a farmer is planning to cooperate in the conservation program in 1938 regardless of the outcome of the referenda on cotton and tobacco, what effect will quotas have on him?

A. The application of quotas will make no difference to producers who are planning to co-operate in the conservation program because the acreage allotment to the farm is the same regardless of whether quotas are in effect.

Q. How will the payments to be made under the conservation program in 1938 be divided between landlord and tenant?

A. The conservation payments are to be divided between landlord and tenant in proportion as they share in the crop, except that payments for soil-building practices are to be divided in the proportion in which landlord and tenant contribute to carrying out the practices.

Q. Are negro farmers eligible to vote in the March 12 referenda?

A. Yes, all farmers, white and black, who were engaged in the production of cotton or flue-cured tobacco in 1937 are eligible to vote.

Q. Who selects the county committees that are to have charge of the cotton and tobacco referenda on March 12?

A. The county committees are made up of farmers who were elected by fellow farmers in their own communities to help conduct Agricultural Adjustment Administration programs.

Q. Are cotton loans to be available in 1938?

A. Only if marketing quotas are in effect. If quotas are rejected on March 12 by vote of the producers, loans will not be available before August 1, 1939.

Confederate Veterans Show How Big Apple Was Danced in the Sixties

That there's plenty of life in the "old boys" yet is shown by this shot of three Confederate veterans at the last meeting of the Welcome Court, where they were special guests. The "boys in gray" are showing four Atlanta high school girls that the Big Apple was danced pretty much in the sixties as it is today, but under other names and minus "truckin'." From left to right they are Christine Sanford, Private J. C. Dodgen, Helen Peek, Brigadier General M. Y. Griggs, Margaret Smith and Private W. H. Culpepper.

SPY QUIZ SUSPECTS GRILLED BY G-MEN

Many Persons Detained in Drive; Japanese Halted at Charleston, S. C.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Justice Department agents questioned secretly today several persons suspected of being spies.

A usually well-informed official indicated that many persons had been taken into custody in widely separated parts of the country.

Elaborate steps have been taken by both the State and Justice Departments to prevent information regarding espionage investigations from leaking prematurely.

Attorney General Cummings has instructed the Federal Bureau of Investigation to give out no further information without his approval.

Confidential reports prepared by the State Department have been transferred from Justice Department files to safes, where they are under constant watch of building guards.

JAPANESE QUESTIONED ABOUT PHOTOGRAPHS

Three Marriages Follow Meetings At 'Pop' Gleason's Loneliness Clinic

Welcome Court Affairs Prove Solution for Lady With Trailer Looking for Gentleman With Auto—or Just Ordinary Folk Looking for an Evening of Unusual Fun.

By JACK SPALDING III.

If you're a lonely heart, a widow in search of a widower, or vice versa, or a lady with a trailer looking for a gentlemen with an automobile, you might solve your particular problem at the next meeting of the Welcome Court Social Club, Fort No. 1.

If you're only an ordinary person, with ordinary motives, and want to broaden your acquaintance a bit, and pass a pleasant evening, come to the next meeting of the Welcome Court. It was founded with you in mind.

If you're a psychiatrist or a sociologist in search of a laboratory, don't miss it. You'll find a few problems you'll enjoy solving.

Loneliness Called Sickness.

This amazing clearing house of human relations was founded in November, 1936, by M. D. (Pop) Gleason, who says that loneliness is the greatest sickness in the world today.

The first meeting was held over a luncheon table in a downtown restaurant with seven people in attendance. The last meeting, a dance, in the stately ballroom of the Biltmore, drew at least 300 people.

If you're a regular member, and pay your 50 cents annual dues, admission to the parties is free, unless there's something special on. Then you're assessed 10 or 20 cents. If you're just a casual visitor, there's a charge, little more than nominal, which entitles you to all the entertainment and the privilege of wearing a red, green or white ribbon.

In spite of this generosity of the Gleasons, Mrs. Gleason, wife of the impresario, indignantly declared that there were people Wednesday night who wanted to know if there was going to be free food, when they learned there was a 20-cent admission charge.

Finances Looking Up.

"Pop" Gleason said the financial situation of the club was looking up. Each party usually ended with a small deficit, which he or friends of his organization met out of their own pockets. However, the gala affair held in a downtown department store on February 24, managed to pay its own way, and Wednesday night's entertainment had a very prosperous air about it.

There's seldom a dull moment at a Welcome Court dance. When things on the floor begin to lag, and there aren't many couples waltzing, fox trotting, shagging and trying to revive the polka and schottische to the same piece of music, "Pop" usually mounts the platform and the best organized claque south of the Metropolitan opera house goes into action.

Every sentence is lavishly punctuated with applause. Every joke is laughed at, uproariously. Sometimes "Pop" starts them dancing again with renewed vigor and zest. At times he organizes a square dance, and on other occasions he gets them all singing old favorites.

Sentiment Flowers.

With the singing, sentiment flowers. Sweethearts (by courtesy of the Welcome Court), hold hands and look dreamy. Husbands and wives who owe their bliss to the club's existence join in lustily. According to "Pop" there are now three happily married couples who met and courted at club socials. And, he added, there's another couple almost ready to take the step.

Unfortunately for romance, there are usually more women present than men. The surplus ladies sit demurely on the sidelines, chat, and watch the dancing. Some of them are obviously hoping for better times. Others dance with members of their own sex.

One young lady was seen trucking dreamily alone in a secluded corner. Not bad looking, she was approached by several unattached males. She shook her head slowly at all of them, and continued her rhythmic shuffling, happily lost in a world of her own.

Costume doesn't matter. You can come in a business suit, a house dress, or formal evening wear. If you like to pretend you're in Miami, and want to wear a white linen mess jacket, wear it. Somebody was doing it last Wednesday night and having a swell time. Another guest, Achilles du Fresne, gentleman loafer, as he calls himself, cut a very dapper figure in morning clothes.

Mr. du Fresne, a native of France, but now of Miami, Atlanta and St. Louis, was in a very talkative mood. He said the newspapers had been after his age for quite a while, and though as a rule he didn't like to give it, he would make that night an exception and admit to 72 years. Spry as a cricket, he ascribes it all to his habit of dancing at least four times a week. Af it to prove his statement, he leaped from his seat during an intermission, grabbed a partner, and waltzed across the floor.

An Artist at Heart.

Returning, he remarked that he was an artist at heart, and mentioned the recent Philharmonic concert when he rose from his seat during a pause in the music and delivered an impromptu speech on the excellence of the performance.

Special guests at the Wednesday dance were four "sweethearts" as "Pop" called them, from the Old Ladies' Home, and three Confederate veterans from the Soldier's Home. They got a great kick out of everything.

The next meeting, to be held in a brewery, should hit a new high in something.

MORRISON DIRECTS OGLETHORPE GROUP

Minister Chosen To Head Speakers' Bureau in $155,000 Campaign.

Speakers' bureau of Oglethorpe University's silver anniversary campaign to raise $155,000 will be headed by the Rev. Theodore V. Morrison, assistant rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, and an alumnus of the university, it was announced yesterday.

The campaign will get under way with speeches at many civic and business clubs this week. Meanwhile leading representatives of the women's board of the university were planning to confer at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Piedmont hotel, where they will hear an address by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of the university.

Announcement of the beginning of the campaign drew favorable comment and indorsement from many Atlanta businessmen, including Charles F. Palmer, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, who said:

"Through the strenuous work of Oglethorpe University's president in raising nearly one-half million dollars outside the city, the university is practically out of debt. With the support of the city it will reach its goal soon. As a businessman of Atlanta it is a pleasure for me to indorse this project."

Associated with Mr. Morrison on the speakers bureau are Carlton W. Binns, Oscar J. Coe, R. Beverley Irwin, Devereux H. Lippitt Jr., Henry M. Powell and Samuel Rothberg. Speaking engagements have been arranged at 11 clubs.

TWO MEN CLEARED IN CAR THEFT CASE

Youths in Detention Home Confess Stealing Auto.

Two men arrested Wednesday night in connection with theft of an automobile found abandoned on Marietta street the night before were cleared of all blame yesterday by city detectives after two youths in the juvenile detention home confessed to the theft.

The men were Ralph W. Knight, 23, of Longley avenue, and J. T. Jones, 22, of Luckie street. They were freed after detectives obtained confessions from the two youths.

Knight and Jones had been held since Thursday when they were bound over to the grand jury under $500 bonds on auto theft charges. Detectives last night said they would ask the grand jury to return "no bills" since the men have been cleared.

WHAT HELPS BUSINESS—HELPS YOU
WHAT HURTS BUSINESS—HURTS YOU

1. What is Business?

Webster's first definition of business is "the state of being busy." He follows with the simple words, "diligence; industry" and finally with the very significant phrases "constant employment; regular occupation; work."

★

Let's look around our own neighborhood at what we are all proud to call our business houses—the retail stores; the manufacturing plants; the movie houses; the garages; the banks; the newspapers; insurance offices and countless others. In many cases we know the men and women who own or help to run them. We and our friends work in them. In our city they are business.

★

What is business? Why, business is all of us, the men and women of the nation who work diligently and industriously and thus keep busy.

Yet we have all heard the broad statements that "business" is holding back prosperity; that "business" is blocking progress; that "business" is seeking purely selfish ends without any consideration of humanity.

★

Are we, the men and women of business guilty of these things? Are our butcher, baker and grocer, who seek to earn an honest livelihood, guilty of these things? For an indictment of "business" embraces the backbone of America — the men and women who work — the men and women who are business.

★

A good bank is not only the financial heart of the community but also holds the obligation of helping in any manner possible to make the people of the community successful and prosperous. In such a spirit do we publish this message, which is one in a series.

V. F. W. Commander Urges Big Defense

Says Large Army and Navy Will Keep Peace for United States.

By LUKE GREENE.

Peace for the United States can be attained only by building a strong army, navy and air force, Scott P. Squyres, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, declared yesterday as he arrived in Atlanta for a visit with the Georgia department.

The national commander in chief spoke to local members of the organization at a meeting last night. Earlier in the day he addressed a luncheon meeting of the Marietta post and placed a wreath on the grave of the Confederate Unknown Soldier at Cheatham's Hill near Marietta.

He insisted that this country must not be placed in the position of being overrun by any nation. He said every other nation is arming to the teeth, and added that "if we don't protect ourselves, then someone else will come over and take us."

Will Respect U. S.

Squyres believes that other nations will respect the United States "if we are prepared, so that when we say 'peace for America' we can back it up."

"The world has progressed in many ways, and it would take only a few hours for bombing planes to come over from Europe and destroy Atlanta—and don't think they wouldn't do it if they thought they could get by with it," he declared.

Deploring the fact that Confederate graves and battlefields in Georgia are unmarked, Squyres said "if I lived in Georgia I'd fight to see every Confederate grave and battlefield designated by an appropriate marker."

"Isms" Assailed.

Attacking Communism, Fascism, and other "isms" which "are waging a silent but desperate fight to destroy our democratic government," the national officer said, "they are working insidiously through churches and public schools.

"We don't want Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, or Communist Russia to come over here with some of their newfangled ideas and tell us how to get along," he said, "and the only way to combat that is to teach our people what it means to be patriotic," he asserted.

Despite subversive influences from the outside, Squyres believes "the United States is still the most progressive, most peaceful and best place in the world in which to live."

Praises Roosevelt.

Paying tribute to President Roosevelt, Squyres said "he has made mistakes, but he has done a good job, for the Communists haven't started a war yet."

The commander in chief is of the opinion that war veterans should be given first consideration by government and business employers.

"Veterans offered their lives for the perpetuation of the United States and it seems reasonable that when jobs are to be filled they should be given preference," he said.

There are now approximately 1,000,000 unemployed veterans, Squyres pointed out. "If we would give those men something to do, we would save the government a lot of money that would otherwise have to be spent treating them in hospitals."

Jobs or Pensions.

"But if we don't give these boys jobs, the only thing left to do is to give them pensions," he said.

Commander in Chief Squyres was met in Chattanooga early yesterday morning by William L. Van Dyke, commander of the Georgia department of the V. F. W. After an inspection of Fort Oglethorpe the two proceeded to Marietta and later to Atlanta where they toured Veterans' Hospital No. 48 and visited the cyclorama. They will leave today for a tour of the state.

Alfred J. Kennedy, national commander of the United States Spanish War Veterans, and Mrs. Mary McGauley, national president of the Spanish War Veterans' Auxiliary, also made a tour of the hospital yesterday.

ITALIAN ACADEMY

Move To Change Deputy Chamber Is Charged.

ROME, March 7.—(AP)—The appointment of Luigi Federzoni as president of the Royal Academy of Italy to succeed the late Gabriele D'Annunzio was interpreted tonight as a political move toward reorganization of the chamber of deputies as a corporative chamber.

Literary circles said Federzoni had been a strong adherent to Fascism, but had made no recognized contribution to Italian literature, was not a member of the academy and did not enjoy universal artistic renown as did other academicians such as Pietro Mascagni, the composer.

FORMER PREMIER OF EGYPT DIES

Heart Disease Fatal to Leader During World War.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 7.—(AP)—Tewfik Nessim Pasha, 64, former premier whose engagement to the 17-year-old daughter of an Austrian inkeeper created a stir in recent months, died today of heart disease.

Nessim formed two short-lived cabinets shortly after the World War when Egypt was struggling for independence. He again held the permiership from 1934 to 1936.

Last December the Egyptian supreme court declared him sane and free to spend his fortune as he pleased after relatives protested his engagement to youthful Maria Huebner and a change in his will naming his bethrothed as beneficiary.

There had been a number of arguments between Nessim and the girl's parents over a proposed marriage settlement. His illness prevented the marriage.

degree in which the four major objectives of your Plant-to-Prosper campaigns is successful.

"If Georgia planters grow their own foods and feed crops and really live at home; if they conserve their soil; if they diversify crops and quit depending solely on any one crop for subsistence; if they improve their homes—all basic principles of the Plant-to-Prosper program—the state will be benefited immeasurably.

"Business has a direct interest in the future of the Georgia farmer. It can well afford to invest in him. If the farmer prospers, every business enterprise in the state prospers. There should be closer cooperation, therefore, between business and the planter. The farmer's problem is the problem of every businessman in Georgia and should receive the sympathetic cooperation of every progressive Georgian.

"The economic condition of the farmer is reflected in every urban community. In fact, the progress and prosperity of the entire state hinges on the economic independence of the farmer.

"So convinced am I that everything possible should be done to induce planters of Georgia to take full advantage of the Plant-to-Prosper program that I am now offering you and The Constitution $1,000 to be used in promotion work in carrying the movement to every nook and corner of Georgia. I realize that The Constitution will expend several thousand dollars in this work in addition to more than $4,000 for cash prizes and other awards. I, therefore, wish to supplement your promotion by another $1,000.

"With best wishes to you and for the success of the undertaking."

TWO LINK SUSPECT TO SLAIN ROBBER

Prisoner Is Identified as Partner of Bandit Killed by Motorman.

A 21-year-old negro listed as Albert Watts was identified last night as the partner of another negro, Albert Barron, shot and killed Friday night as he attempted to hold up Street Car Motorman L. L. Bobo.

The negro was also linked up with two previous streetcar holdups in January last night after a coroner's inquest into the shooting of Barron. Two other streetcar operators, W. C. Dukes and T. J. Peck, identified Barron as the one who held them up and said they recognized Watts as his partner. He was arrested by Detectives R. J. Denny and "Doc" Sims.

Dukes was held up January 12 at the end of the Erwin and Hale streets line and robbed of $21. Peck was held up the same night at the end of the West Hunter street line and robbed of $30 and a $45 watch.

Police and Georgia Power Company officials said identification of Watts and Barron as the holdup pair leaves only one unsolved streetcar hold-up this year. A negro who held up C. L. Fuller and took $23, escaping from a trap laid by detectives the night of January 14, is still being sought, they said. The negro fled in a hail of bullets from guns of detectives who set the trap.

PROFESSOR NAMED FOR ANTI-TRUST JOB

has taken the place of actual government control.

In many ways his views are similar to those of his predecessor as assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, Robert H. Jackson, now solicitor general. His chapters on the anti-trust laws are adorned with footnotes liberally quoting Jackson's speeches.

The small group of senators who opposed Jackson's confirmation was obviously smarting today under the 62-to-4 vote by which the nomination was approved last week, and would have nothing to say as to plans for opposing Arnold's confirmation. They made it plain, however, that they intended to read his book.

This volume, a barbed discussion of certain "ideas about social organizations," finds the origin of the anti-trust laws in the popular psychology of the 90's.

By popular concept, he writes, bigness was a "curse" that interferred with the law of supply and demand. Therefore, it was considered bad. But bigness also offered ways in which goods could be produced in large quantities at low prices.

Thus, the ideal of small enterprises in a state of free competition collided, he said, with a "practical necessity" (the need for quantities of goods at low prices).

Anti-Trust Rise.

As a result, he wrote, "it became necessary to develop a procedure which constantly attacked bigness on rational, legal and economic grounds, and at the same time never really interfered with combinations."

He added:

"Such pressures gave rise to the anti-trust laws which appeared to be a complete prohibition of large corporations. The same pressure made the enforcement of the anti-trust laws a pure ritual. The effect of the statement of the ideal and its lack of actual enforcement was to convince reformers either that large combinations did not actually exist, or else that if they did exist they were about to be done away with just as soon as right thinking men were elected to office.

"Trust busting therefore became one of the great moral issues of the day, while at the same time great combinations thrived and escaped regulation."

FARM ACT DEFINED 'ABUNDANCE' PLAN

Program of 'Democracy' Also, Wallace Says.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Secretary Wallace said tonight that the new farm act represented a program of abundance and democracy, and that it gave agriculture a plan "which is a challenge to industry."

He urged industry to reverse present downward production trends so as to balance with larger output of factory goods the "existing abundance" of farm commodities.

"If industry follows the trail blazed by agriculture, both farm and city people will make more rapid gains," the secretary of agriculture added in the national radio forum of the Washington Star.

Wallace said that although the act had been called complicated, it actually was "just as simple as, and perhaps simpler than," the invalidated AAA law. He said that within a month farmer committees would understand very well how it applied to their communities.

Orchestra Will Open Week's Engagement March 14.

Fred Waring will bring his Pennsylvanians, one of the nation's best known orchestras, to Atlanta March 14 for a week's personal appearance at the Georgia theater.

With Fred and his boys will be many new faces. Number 1 is Betty Atkinson, blonde tap dancing drum major from the University of Southern California. She will make two batons spin like tops while executing the intricate military tap routine.

Number 2 is Donna Dae, blue eyed, dark-haired girl from Nebraska, who sings popular numbers with a swingy contralto voice. Number 3 highlight of Fred's program is Gordon Goodman, a tenor, and Number 4 is Al Bettorf, virtuoso of the marimbaphone.

Among the old favorites with the orchestra are Poley McClintock, frog-voiced percussionist and cut-up; Ferne, the girl player of sophisticated violin solos; the MacFarland Twins; Scotty Bates and the original Waring Glee Club.

HAWAIIANS TO TAKE PACIFIC ISLES OVER

Nine Will Stake Claim of U. S. to Two Areas for Use by Airlines.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Nine Hawaiians will stake the United States' claim to two mid-Pacific islets on the long air route to Australia.

The Interior Department said today it would send five Hawaiians to Canton Island and four to Enderbury to do preliminary work toward the establishment of commercial air bases.

Actually, the Hawaiians, citizens of the United States, will "colonize" the islands under the flag of this country—thereby countering any claim Great Britain may lay to the coral atolls near the equator.

President Roosevelt, in an executive order filed last week, commanded that the islands be put under the jurisdiction of the Interior Department.

Today the White House was at pains to explain that the intention was non-military. Stephen T. Early, press secretry, said "it has nothing to do with war or war plans."

The State Department said the discoverers of the islands are unknown and that America's claims is based on use of the land specks by American whaling vessels since 1828, or even earlier.

BUSINESS DENIES 'STRIKE BREAKING'

Manufacturers Tell About Distributing 'Programs' to Members.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Officials of the National Association of Manufacturers disputed today a contention by senate investigators that the organization had encouraged the use of "citizens' committees" and "back-to-work" movements to combat strikes.

Walter B. Weisenburger, executive vice president, and Noel Sargent, secretary, told the senate civil liberties committee the association distributed information to its members but did not assist in promoting strike-breaking devices.

Conferring frequently with each other and with their counsel, John C. Gall, before answering questions, the witnesses told about planning "community programs" which they said were designed to marshal friendly public opinion for industry.

Chairman La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, of the investigating committee, said the distribution of information on the use of "citizens' committees" in strikes was similar to a device popular in prohibition days.

It was, he said, like labeling a bottle with a "warning" that its contents would ferment if left uncorked in a warm place.

Weisenburger conceded that a 1937 pamphlet prepared by the association, but not generally distributed to its membership, carried a suggestion that citizens' committees and "back-to-work" movements were needed to settle labor strike. He added, however, it was not the intent of the association to foster such devices.

Windsors, 'Happier Than at Any Time Since Wedding', Refurbish Home

Acme Photo.

Central Press Photo.

Here is the chateau near Versailles where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are now at home and described as "happier than at any time since their marriage." While Wally spends her time running the complicated household with the aid of twenty servants, the Duke golfs. The estate contains a miniature golf course, tennis courts and a swimming pool. They are making extensive changes in the chateau.

Duchess Gaily Struggling Along With Assistance of 20 Servants

Wally, a Thoroughgoing Housewife, Delays Embarking on Big-Scale Entertaining Until New Liveries and Royal Linen Arrive.

PARIS, March 7.—(UP)—The Duchess of Windsor, gaily struggling with the job og running a complicated household, is waiting impatiently for the arrival of new liveries to outfit her staff of 20 servants before embarking on any big-scale entertaining, it was revealed tonight.

The Duke and Duchess, described as being "happier than at any time since their marriage" last June, are giving dinner parties for as many as 10 guests, but the Duchess is reluctant to stage any big receptions until the servants have their new finery.

Duke Plays Golf.

While the Duchess arranges the Chateau de La Maye, near Versailles, to suit her taste, the Duke spends most of his time playing golf. He leaves all the planning to his bride.

Although they have the chateau on a short-term lease, they are rapidly changing the entire interior to suit themselves.

Several shipments of the Duke's personal household effects arrived from England in recent weeks. Included are the silver table services, which will be used instead of those belonging to Mme. Paul Dupuy, from whom the chateau was rented.

Await Royal Linen.

The Duke and Duchess have not yet received their houschold linen bearing the royal arms, but it is expected to arrive soon.

Members of the entourage say the Duchess is a thoroughgoing housewife and takes a lively interest in every aspect of her job. She plans all the meals—the Windsors eat lightly except when entertaining—scrutinizes the bills and studies the kitchen book every morning with Chef Diot.

The Duchess makes almost daily trips to Paris, sometimes with the Duke and sometimes alone, visiting her dressmakers and hairdressers. The couple often come into town evenings for the movies, theater or dinner parties.

Have Famous Butler.

The household staff has been considerably increased since the Windsors moved into La Maye and now numbers 20 persons, headed by the famous French butler, Etienne, formerly with the Countess de Castellane and Baroness Eugene de Rothschild.

The kitchen staff includes the chef, second chef, two assistants and several others; the butler has two assistants; there are two parlor maids, a linen maid, the Duchess' personal maid, the Duke's valet, two chauffeurs, two secretaries and several minor domestics.

How long the Windsors intend to remain at the chateau still is a mystery even to their closest friends. It was first expected they would stay four months, but now staff members believe they will remain at least six. The Duchess would not spend so much time arranging things if it were for a shorter period, they said.

STATE DEPARTMENT FAVORS DEBT PLAN

Some Solons Cool To Reports Roosevelt Will Back Hungary.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Some congressional leaders gave a cool reception today to reports that President Roosevelt would send Hungary's debt settlement proposal to congress shortly.

Under the proposal, Hungary would pay all of its principal debt, but no interest. It was learned the State Department had advised Mr. Roosevelt to accept the offer for two reasons. One is that it comes from a country which has been a good payer in the past. The other is that it might set a precedent for similar settlements by large debtor nations which are paying nothing.

However, Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee, told reporters he believed the time was inopportune to attempt any negotiations for revision of international debts.

RED CROSS PUSHES FLOOD FUND APPEAL

Asks Quick Response to $300,000 Relief for California Area.

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—(AP) The Red Cross urged quick response today to its appeal for southern California flood relief contributions, emphasizing that the $300,000 fund sought will be the only money available for direct relief of individual sufferers.

The Weather Bureau reported a new storm condition off the coast and issued a forecast of "unsettled with probable rain tonight and tomorrow." The rain is expected to be light, however, the bureau added.

The list of dead and missing in last week's devastating floods in five southern California counties fluctuated today around the 175 mark.

Latest figures were 69 identified dead, 17 unidentified dead and 86 persons reported missing.

In an attempt to save the life of Mrs. Helen Troy, wife of the Governor of Alaska, marooned in San Gabriel canyon, Dr. E. R. Lambertson made every effort today to charter an amphibian plane to land on the upper San Gabriel reservoir.

The Los Angeles city council appropriated $89,000 today to start clearance work and appealed to President Roosevelt for federal aid up to $5,000,000 to repair highways, bridges and public buildings.

Crop damage in Los Angeles county will run more than $325,000, the county agricultural commissioner's office estimated. This includes $200,000 damage to the strawberry crop. Other damage was confined mainly to citrus groves.

Entire flood damage to public and private property in the five stricken counties is estimated at about $65,000,000.

IMPROVED COTTON URGED ON FARMERS

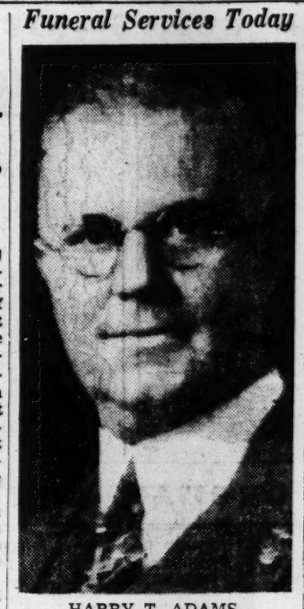

Better Seed. Longer Staple Regarded Necessary.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 7.—(UP)—Dr. C. E. Brehm, director of the University of Tennessee agricultural extension service, said today farmers must cheapen cost of cotton production and improve its quality if they are to recover the world market from foreign producers.

He urged farmers to use better seed and grow cotton of longer staple as one means of improving quality.

Dr. Brehm spoke at the better seed conference which was attended by farmers, buyers and cotton experts.

ET EQUAL QUALITY ..pay less for it!

Four major factors determine the quality of typewriter ribbons. 1: fabric, 2: ink, 3: method of inking, 4: equal and ample edge sizing.

Fabrics are graded according to "thread-count," which measures their fineness. This "thread-count" is the identifying base upon which your ribbons should be chosen. The higher the "thread-count," the finer the fabric . . . just as in a handkerchief or shirt, for instance.

Therefore, think of "handkerchiefs" or "shirts" when you buy typewriter ribbons. If you want a heavy-duty ribbon . . . select one with a low "thread-count" . . . 268 or less. This is the "utility handkerchief" or "work-shirt" quality.

On the other hand, if you want a ribbon in which clean, sharp "write" is more important than ruggedness . . . select a high "thread-count" . . . which is the finer "handkerchief" or "dress-shirt" quality—288, 295, 304 or 324 thread count.

KODYE provides Typewriter Ribbons in a variety of "thread-counts" . . . suited to varying requirements. Prices range as they do in handkerchiefs or shirts . . . "work-shirt" ribbons cost less than the "dress-shirt" kind because the fabric is less expensive.

Improved inks, advanced methods of inking and definite specification of thread count plus equal and ample edge sizing assure Randall KODYE users standardization of product . . . and standardized superior results.

So, ask your stationer today to show you the KODYE SELECTION CHART. From it, he can choose for you the exact KODYE ribbon best suited to the job you ask it to do . . . the particular KODYE ribbon that, because of Randall's manufacturing ingenuity, will give you quality equal to that of any other brand in the same "thread-count" . . . for LESS MONEY.

Buy KODYE ribbons today . . . in dozen lots and make an EXTRA SAVING.

A. & P. WILL OPEN NEW TYPE STORE

'Gliders' Will Be Used in Making Selections at Clairmont Unit.

Workmen were busy yesterday completing a new type of self-service store, to be operated by the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, at 144 Clairmont avenue, Decatur.

The new store, to be opened Thursday, will be one of the largest groceries in the Atlanta area, with 7,500 square feet of floor space and extensive parking space at the side and rear.

Officials said the store is designed to serve Decatur, Clarkston, Lithonia, Stone Mountain, Tucker and Lawrenceville. The self-service plan will be the first of its kind in this section, officials added.

Instead of being served by a clerk, shoppers will be supplied with a long-handled shopping 'glider,' in which will be placed merchandise, individually price-marked, taken from shelves and counters.

When selection is completed, the shopper will roll the "glider" to one of four outlets in the front. There a clerk will remove the purchases, tabulate the bill and wrap the bundle. Clerks will serve in the meat, dairy and produce departments, however.

SALVATION ARMY REPORTS ON GAINS

Pugmire Says Scope of Work Broadened.

Increased interest and co-operation in Salvation Army work by the people of Atlanta was noted during the past year, Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire declared at a meeting of the Atlanta advisory board yesterday.

During the year, he said, the scope of the work in the south has been broadened, and facilities greatly increased. In the Atlanta area, 851 families, and 1,355 other women and children were cared for by the Family Welfare department, while permanent employment was obtained for 125 persons. Last Christmas, 7,250 toys were given to children, and garments and grocery orders given away totaled nearly 2,800.

Preston Arkwright, chairman of the board, spoke briefly on the work of the Army, and the accomplishments made possible through the co-operation of Atlanta citizens.

POOR RELATION

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Katha Lodge leaves her New Hampshire hamlet for a New York visit at the invitation of her wealthy uncle, Richard Carruth, and his foster-daughter Lois. Lois meets her train and on the way to the Carruths' Park avenue penthouse warns Katha to call her aunt Evelyn, not Aunt Evelyn. Kemp Loring and Bill McMillan are among those there for the cocktail hour, but Lois has warned her not to look at Kemp twice or her sister Millicent's claws will come out. She likes Bill but wonders whether this wealthy boy isn't merely planning to amuse himself with her. Her Uncle Richard, a later arrival, greets her warmly. Evelyn pleads an engagement after dinner and evidently considers her niece's visit a trial. Millicent goes out with Kemp. Lois explains Evelyn's nervousness by saying she happened upon Eric Carlton and Evelyn while he was kissing her. He is younger than Evelyn, but they go together constantly to parties while Richard is engrossed in business. Lois confides that Terry Reese, a college student with little money whom she met while horseback riding in the park, has been avoiding her since learning her father is so wealthy. Bill takes Katha on a night club tour, a sight-seeing trip the next day and that night to other clubs. He kisses her the second night and she knows she loves him but fears he is trifling. But bill loves her and decides to consult his rich uncle whose heir he will be. Kemp and Millicent quarrel because she will not say yes or no to his proposals. He makes a luncheon date with Katha. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VII.

His face relaxed. "You're very clever, Katha. No, she wasn't ill. She was angry—with me. We're through. Finished. And I've about three and a half weeks left in New York before going back to California. Will you help me fill them up?"

She looked up at him, her brows drawn together. "Why? About you and Millicent, I mean . . ."

"It's a long story. I'll tell you about it if—if you'll help me fill up the three and a half weeks. I spent some summers in New Hampshire. We'd have something to talk about, I'm sure. What do you say?"

"I'm Millicent's guest and her cousin. Have you forgotten that?"

"Does it matter? It doesn't to her or to me. Besides, a month from now I'll be in California and you in New Hampshire. What have we to lose? We could have fun in the meantime."

But there was Bill. . . . It was unwise to give him all her time though she wished to be with no one else. And perhaps her seeing Kemp might make Millicent jealous enough to agree to marry him and go west with him.

Kemp smiled again. "I took you for a girl with a very kind and charitable heart. Don't disappoint me, please. Let me call you in the morning."

She nodded slowly. "All right," not knowing whether she was glad or sorry.

Evelyn stiffened in Eric's arms. "Did you see what Kemp did the moment Millicent left? He went straight to Katha. I didn't think that of him. Millicent, poor child. . . . Didn't she look dreadful, Eric?"

Eric looked bored. "It was just a lovers' quarrel."

"Do you think so? I hope so! But why did he let her go if he's so much in love with her? It seems to me he was very anxious to dance with Katha. I knew that inviting her was a mistake. I told Richard. Eric, I can't stay. I can't bear Millicent's going home alone, crying. I'd like to know what Kemp said to her that hurt her so."

Eric was annoyed now. "You mean you're going to leave?"

"Please, let's not quarrel. I simply can't stay. She needs me. You stay, darling. I'll tell Kitty that Millicent was ill. Now don't look so disapproving."

He saw her to the car and stood a moment on the steps and smoked before going in again. It had been unselfish of her not to suggest that he accompany her. Unselfishness always surprised him, being conscious of his own selfishness.

As a small boy, son of an almost impoverished family whose fortune had improved somewhat as he grew up, Eric had known that what he wanted was the pleasures and luxuries that money can buy. After college he had been an actor but the tedious work of the theater bored and wearied him and he had not had a part since his father died, leaving him enough money to live on the edge of comfort but far from the luxuries he desired. Then Evelyn Carruth, pretty, rich, kind, susceptible to flattery, had happened his way. Now if Evelyn would divorce Richard and Richard would settle a large amount of money on her. . . . They had discussed it, he and Evelyn, but invariably the topic made her nervous and dissolved her in tears. But he was patient. It was something for which he was willing to be not only patient but attentive and loving. Sooner or later—and recently with growing impatience he felt that it must be quite soon—Evelyn would agree to go to Richard about the divorce.

Going in, he stood at the entrance of the ballroom and looked at Katha dancing with Kemp Loring. She was very lovely. And because he felt free from Evelyn, he crossed the room and tapped Kemp's shoulder.

"Katha and I haven't met," he said. "I think we should."

Kemp introduced them. And Katha felt herself being transferred into Eric's arms.

"I've heard so much about you," Eric said. "Evelyn was going to introduce us but she left."

Evelyn had gone, too!

With sarcasm he said, "Millicent was feeling low and Evelyn, the good little mother. . . ."

Katha disliked him instantly and wished Bill would come and take here away. At the moment she disliked the polite laws of society which forbid her to say, "You will break up Uncle Richard's home and separate him from Evelyn whom he has loved for 27 years, for whom he has worked all those years, for whom he made all his money. He never wanted it for himself—but for her. And you don't want her. It's the money Uncle Richard has made that you want. And it will make an old man of him and maybe kill him if he discovers that you and Evelyn are more than friends."

Bill, seeing Katha's unhappy eyes, crossed the room to her. He'd been standing apart, just looking at her happily, and smiling to himself at the pleasure of just looking at her dark head rising above her creamy shoulders. She belonged to him. It was the first time in his life that he thought, "That girl is mine—or will be. She is going to be my wife." And Uncle George, who probably lived in the horror that his wealth would fall into the greedy hands of a platinum-haired chorus girl would like her. "He'll love her!" Bill thought with pride.

The blue eyes that had become in an amazingly short time beloved and the only arms she cared ever to have around her enclosed her in them again. Katha blinked tears he did not see, must never see, as he must never know that Millicent's little country cousin loved him.

When they left, she did not know where he was taking her. And she was afraid she was going to cry again when he stopped the car before the little restaurant where the lone violinist went from table to table. Katha thought, "When I'm back home and thinking of him, I'll think of him here as we are tonight."

Bill said, "I'm going down to Asheville next week to see uncle. Have I told you about hin

"He's the uncle who keeps in the manner to which you ha become accustomed."

She did not like his not wo ing, Bill thought. That was of the things he was going to his uncle. He would say, " going to accept Cooper's offer go to work." And Uncle Geo would probably laugh and him how he proposed to foll sports if he were in a law off Bill would say, "I'm getting a tle fed up with playing and do nothing, and the girl I love thi I'm a playboy. If there's word in the language that bu me up, it's that."

"I hope," he said to Katha, "t I won't be away long. At rate, you'll still be here when get back. You see, my uncle done everything for me and I preciate what he's done enough consult him about most eve thing. My parents died when was very young. The old man well, dotes on me." And Un George had asked if and when contemplated matrimony to him first. That was a promise meant to keep.

Katha said, "I'll be here, Bi

When, a little later, he stepp into the drawing room, he sa "Good-night, I'll call you tom row." But he did not kiss again.

Millicent, wearing black sa lounging pajamas, came i Katha's room in the morning a stood over her while Katha w drinking orange juice. Her bl eyes were still red from her te of last night.

"Katha, I came in to tell y that I don't care in the least h often you see Kemp, or where knew the moment I left last nig that he'd be with you. You do have to meet him out. Tell him come here for you. I don't ca I haven't the slightest interest him any more. I'm glad the wh thing is over."

Katha's eyes narrowed. "E you do care."

The other stiffened. "I guess know how I feel! I don't care! was a mistake. The whole thi was a mistake! I'm glad I fou out before I married him!"

Evelyn was coldly polite wh Katha came into the drawing ro later.

Lois said, smiling, "I've a n book on astrology, Katha. Wa to see it?" And when Evelyn w out, she said, "Mother was j telling me about last night."

Katha took a deep breath. "S thinks I'm a scheming adventure I'm not interested in Kemp. perhaps if I could make Millice jealous, she wouldn't be so pro You can't be proud and be in lo Lois. You have to give and ta too much." She looked down her hands and said, "I'm in lo with Bill."

"I knew you were. I knew l night. He . . ."

"He's Bill McMillan. And isn't for me. He isn't the marr ing kind. That's why I told Ker I'd have lunch with him today because Bill isn't the marryi kind and every time I'm with h I feel closer to him. And it's use." She met Lois' serious bro eyes. "Last night I danced wi Eric. I couldn't like him."

Lois closed the book. "Y know, things don't go on like th I mean about Mother and Er And I'm afraid. But with Ter and me it will go on and nothi will happen." She shook her he and the tears started in her ey "And nothing will happen, ever!

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

ON THE EAST CHINA SEA.

Now we are on the East China sea, again heading northward. In the Hongkong harbor I saw hundreds and hundreds of Chinese boats—junks and sampans. A junk is a sailing vessel of a kind used by the Chinese for many centuries. It is fitted with large sails, and often serves as a cargo boat. Thousands of tons of goods are moved each day from port to port along the coast of China.

A Chinese Junk.

Some junks are only 30 or 40 feet long. Others have a length of over 100 feet. A junk may be the home of one or more Chinese families, and people may live aboard it year in and year out, with their pigs and chickens.

Sampans are smaller boats, and are found in even greater number. They are propelled by oars and poles.

Sometimes a sampan has a kind of "cabin" near the stem, but most of those I have seen do not have a built-in cabin. Instead they are fitted with a kind of rounded roof which can be set up or taken down at will. This covers about one-third of the boat.

When the sunshine is too bright, or when the rain is coming down, the family on the sampan creeps into the cabin or under the rounded roof. In summer and winte in spring and autumn, the sa pan is the home of the people w own it. There is no rent to pa but they do not have what call "the real comforts of hom

JAPANESE PREPARE DRIVE FOR RAILHEAD

Batter Way to Position for Fresh Assaults on Shansi Province Points.

SHANGHAI, March 8.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—Japan's north China armies fought their way into positions today for assaults both against the strongholds of Chinese Communist armies and against the vital Lunghai railway.

The Japanese reported they had gained control of almost all of Shansi province, one of the richest in China. The rising-sun flag floated from heights commanding three principal passes along the western border.

From the northernmost of these passes—Hoku, where the great wall casts its shadow over barren foothills of northwest Shansi, Japanese were in position for a westward drive across the Yellow river into the heart of Chinese Red territory.

Within 24 hours Japanese conquered Hotsin, the second pass at the confluence of the Fen and Yellow rivers, and Chaotsun, just across the Yellow from Tungkwan, Lunghai railway point.

BANKER MUST PAY $364,454 IN TAXES

Supreme Court Sustains Charge by Government Against C. E. Mitchell.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) The supreme court decided today that Charles E. Mitchell, once chairman of the National City Bank, of New York, must pay the government a $364,545 assessment imposed for alleged "fraud with intent to evade" 1929 income taxes.

By a six-to-one vote, the court disagreed with Mitchell's contention that his acquittal on a criminal charge of attempting to evade a $728,709 tax barred collection of a 50-per cent penalty.

Justice Brandeis delivered the majority opinion that reversed a decision in favor of Mitchell by the federal circuit court at New York.

Justice McReynolds dissented, but delivered no written opinion. Justices Cardozo and Reed did not participate.

Tax Plus Penalty.

Mitchell was acquitted in June, 1933, after the government complained that he deducted from income an alleged loss of $2,872,305 arising "from a purported sale" of National City Bank stock to his wife. The government said he also failed to return as income $666,666 received from the National City Company, of which he was chairman.

After trial of the criminal charge, the commissioner of internal revenue attempted in civil proceedings to collect the $728,709 tax, plus the 50 per cent penalty.

The circuit court at New York sustained the $728,709 assessment, and the supreme court refused last October to review that part of the decision. However, it consented to pass on the 50 per cent penalty.

Brandeis said it had "long been settled" that "acquittal on a criminal charge is not a bar to a civil action by the government, remedial in its nature, arising out of the same facts on which the criminal proceeding was based."

Taxation Field Widened.

In another decision, the tribunal determined, 5 to 2, that under certain circumstances, the federal government could tax income derived from land leased from a state, and a state could levy upon income arising from land leased from the federal government.

This decision, widening the field of taxation, specifically overruled previous supreme court decisions, handed down in 1922 and 1932. Chief Justice Hughes declared the old rulings, in one of which he himself took part, were "out of harmony with correct principle."

Today's decision involved a federal tax imposed on the Mountain Producers' Corporation of Wyoming, based on income from land leased by the state.

Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented, calling the majority decision a "sweeping change of construction of the constitution."

'FAIR VOTE' IS URGED ON FARM PROGRAM

Cotton, Tobacco Quota Ballot's Importance Is Stressed by Hutson.

TIFTON, March 7.—(AP)—Assistant Administrator J. B. Hutson, of the AAA, today urged "a large vote and a fair vote" on farm marketing quotas, asserting "there is little doubt that the present agricultural adjustment act will some day be tested in the courts."

For this reason, he said here in a speech explaining cotton and flue-cured tobacco marketing quotas on which southern farmers will vote March 12, and because "we want every farmer to express his own well-considered opinion," it is "highly important that referenda be conducted in an impartial manner."

"We want fair referenda," Hutson told the farmer audience that filled the 800-seat Tifton High school auditorium, "and we want as many eligible farmers as can possibly get to polls to cast their ballots. We want those who are honestly opposed to marketing quotas to have the same opportunity for voting as those who honestly favor quotas."

Law Is Explained.

Hutson explained in detail provisions of the new farm program and referenda. He declared marketing quotas, which must be approved by two-thirds of the farmers voting before they can become effective, are needed for cotton to help "get out from under a burdensome surplus" and for flue-cured tobacco to avoid building up "a burdensome surplus."

"Some are inclined to feel that by some mysterious process we can continue to have big crops of flue-cured tobacco and high prices indefinitely," Hutson said, "but I am afraid that is impossible. Today, stocks of flue-cured tobacco are over 100,000,000 pounds larger than they were a year ago. Cotton supplies are already so large that low prices are here.

No Regimentation.

"If a sufficient number of farmers who vote give us a real indication of what most of them want, I have no fear of so-called regimentation or compulsion in connection with these programs. Through the quotas, congress has given the majority power to protect itself against a small minority. To me that is democracy."

Hutson was introduced by Director Walter S. Brown, of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service. E. P. Bowen Jr., of Tifton, members of the state triple-A committee presided.

Fingerprinting To Halt Paroles Obtained by Ruse

Chairman Vivian Stanley, of the State Prison and Parole Commission, said yesterday the system of mandatory fingerprinting of all incoming felony prisoners soon to be inaugurated at Tattnall prison would eliminate unintentional parole of second or third-term prisoners who often obtain clemency by using fictitious names.

Stanley said fingerprinting had been used for some years at Baldwin county prison farm and in Fulton county, but added the system was not yet universal in the state.

The Fulton county grand jury last week criticized the prison commission for releasing "repeaters" on parole.

Stanley said criminals with previous prison records are not released until they had served their minimum terms, plus one year. He added the commission was unable under existing law to hold a prisoner longer than that if his prison conduct was good.

The parole board chairman said trial judges were authorized to sentence third-term offenders to a straight 20 years in prison but that few, if any, acted under this statute.

Trade of Old City Hall Site for Park Defeated by Council in 8-to-5 Vote

Mayor Predicts Proposal Not Dead; Ponce de Leon and Peachtree Whiteways Approved; $169,236 Water Pump Purchase Okayed.

City council yesterday put a damper on the proposal to trade the old city hall site for a park facing the remodeled municipal auditorium.

By a vote of 8 to 5, council refused to consider the suggestion of Mayor Hartsfield and a citizens' committee that the old city hall site be traded for the triangle bounded by Courtland, Gilmer and Edgewood avenue, and ordered the proposal filed.

Hartsfield predicted, however, the matter was not ended and said he sincerely hoped council would move to dispose of the site at Marietta and Forsyth streets and to procure a park to enhance the city's auditorium.

As a counter proposal to the one for an auditorium park, which was suggested by a committee headed by Ivan Allen, prominent businessman, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam introduced a resolution to cancel leases on the old city hall plot and to build a downtown park there. The loss of the $440 per month rental for the plot would be nominal, he asserted.

Charges Big Difference.

Gilliam, Councilman J. Allen Couch and others opposed the trade suggested. Gilliam said the triangle was assessed at $137,000 and the city hall site at $500,000.

This development came at a brief session in which council voted to purchase a $169,236 water pump, 20 new motorcycles and a new car for Fire Chief O. J. Parker but killed a paper to purchase 16 new cars for the radio police.

Led by Alderman Roy Callaway, the aldermanic board refused to concur in council's vote to buy from the low bidder on police cars. Councilmen said new bids would have to be taken.

Approve Whiteways.

A plan for a whiteway system on Ponce de Leon avenue from Peachtree street to Moreland avenue, and on Peachtree from North avenue to Tenth street was approved.

Dewey L. Johnson, city electrician, said unnecessary whiteway lights on Spring, West Peachtree and Peachtree would be taken down to help pay for the new ones. A new type lamp with a reflector to diffuse light will be used.

Bids for repaving the roadway of the Washington street viaduct were opened yesterday, with Sam E. Finley submitting the apparent low bid of $7,266. High bid was $10,592. Bids were referred to the purchasing committee for recommendation.

Alderman Robert Carpenter proposed a resolution to reduce water rates in proportion to the amount of money brought in by liquor licenses, when and if Fulton county and the city votes wet. His paper went to the finance committee.

L. A. Walker Supported.

Councilmen unanimously adopted a resolution expressing confidence in Lloyd A. Walker, city purchasing agent. It called attention to the fact the grand jury exonerated him after investigation of testimony brought out in federal court. The purchasing committee wrote the resolution, with many councilmen signing it.

Mitchell street, from Whitehall to Forsyth street, was made nonparking during peak traffic hours, when council adopted the favorable police committee recommendation.

The fourth ward delegation adversed a proposal to change the name of Avon avenue to Ragsdale Memorial drive, "because 95 per cent of the residents on this avenue did not want any change," they reported. Council approved their finding.

Vote Simons Pay Raise.

Approval of a salary raise from $3,400 to $4,000 for George I. Simons, general parks manager, was given also.

An improvement program for the fifth ward, proposed by Councilman John A. White, received approval as that body moved to back up Chief H. J. Cates, of the sanitary department, in his campaign to clean up vacant lots.

Council sanctioned White's project of repairing sidewalks, curbs and driveways on all main thoroughfares in his ward, and adopted a resolution by Councilmen Frank Wilson and Howard Haire to direct Cates to proceed in notifying owners of vacant property to clean it or have the city do it with the bill being sent to the owner.

White listed 86 unsanitary vacant lots in his ward and more than a dozen streets which need repairing.

Wilson's and Haire's move requested Cates to make his operations city-wide in cleaning vacant lots.

'Milker' Garbo Is Godmother To Italian Calf

RAVELLO, March 7.—(UP)—Greta Garbo became a godmother today—to a calf—while she and her musical companion, Leopold Stokowski, awaited an opportunity for a "getaway," presumably for Turin where it is reported they will be married.

It was learned that the "getaway" was planned for last night and Miss Garbo and the white-haired conductor of the Philadelphia symphony orchestra were all packed and ready to go.

But they sent servants to the gate to see if the way was clear, and the servants reported there was a big bonfire blazing a little way down the road with a group of newspapermen clustered around it.

The two celebrated guests, who have lived in virtual seclusion at the Villa Cimbrone since their presence was discovered last week, unpacked and retired to their rooms.

Miss Garbo achieved godmotherhood when Emma, the dun-colored cow which was accorded the honor of being milked by the actress last week, gave birth this morning.

STRANGE DISEASE AFFLICTS NURSES

Doctor Reports 'Mystery' at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—(AP)—A mysterious, unnamed disease was described today by Dr. E. T. Remmen, Glendale, in a report to the board of supervisors concerning an epidemic that afflicted 300 nurses of the Los Angeles General hospital in 1934 and 1935.

Believed at the time to be poliomyelitis, today's report termed the epidemic a "medical mystery."

"The symptoms were far more those of a brain inflamation than of spinal cord involvement which occurs in infantile paralysis," Dr. Remmen said. "Headache, blinding and agonizing, vomiting and retching pain and spasm in arms and legs, abdominal pains and, above all, great irritability, sensibility to light and noise, with intense emotional disturbances—such was the clinical picture."

The type of treatment which benefits anterior poliomyelitis may be useless, harmful or impossible in the disease, he said.

The report stated the disease left some women patients incapable of motherhood.

LANDON INDICATES NEW PARTY LINES

Former G. O. P. Nominee Speaks in Florida.

HOWEY-IN-THE-HILLS, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Alfred M. Landon told Florida Republican leaders today shifting of party lines might lead to a realignment of political organizations.

"We are finding more crossing and breaking up of party lines in recent years," the 1936 Republican presidential nominee said, "it might lead to a regrouping of party lines."

This, he said, occurs only under the pressure of great events.

Landon spoke at a luncheon given in his honor by W. J. Howey at whose home the Kansan and Mrs. Landon are visiting. Approximately 60 Florida Republican leaders attended.

Publisher Says Ambitions Exceed Kaiser's.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 7. (UP)—Frank E. Gannett, New York publisher, told the Pan-American League tonight he had obtained a "secret map" disclosing Adolf Hitler's ambitions to make Germany a dominating power in Europe.

"He (Hitler) not only plots to restore Germany to its pre-war power, but would extend its boundaries and exceed the ambitions of the Kaiser," Gannett said. "When he has carried out the plans revealed by this map, Germany will be a dominating power in Europe, extending from the Baltic sea to the Balkans, from the Rhine to the western borders of Russia."

The office of former Governor Talmadge announced yesterday he had accepted an invitation to discuss the farm bill at Hahira, in the tobacco belt, at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

The announcement said a group of tobacco growers, including Remer Y. Scruggs, Remer Y. Scruggs Jr., Hugh Register, Talley Lawson, and D. W. Gerrald, had telegraphed Talmadge from Hahira inviting him to speak.

Georgia tobacco and cotton farmers will vote Saturday on a quota plan for marketing of tobacco and cotton.

GEORGIANS URGE WATERWAY CHANGE

Chattahoochee, Flint and Apalachicola Plan Pushed.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) A delegation of Georgians urged the army board of engineers today to approve the proposed development of the Apalachicola, Chattahoochee and Flint river system in Georgia and Florida as an aid to the economic development of the area.

The board had the project under review. The division engineer reported favorably on the Apalachicola and Chattahoochee development, but held the Flint river development was not justified.

The Georgians stressed they were seeking development of the system as a whole.

The delegation was accompanied to the hearing by Senators George and Russell, Democrats, Georgia; Representatives Cox, Owen and Pace, Democrats, Georgia, and Representative Caldwell, Democrat, Florida.

Senator George explained the improvement sought would develop navigation to Columbus on the Chattahoochee and to Albany on the Flint. He and other members of the congressional delegation said the project would provide substantially reduced freight rates to offset "discriminatory" rail rates in the southeast.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) The Agriculture Adjustment Administration reported today the payment of about $72,000,000 since January 1 in benefits to farmers for co-operation in the 1937 agricultural conservation programs.

Dog, Pal of Boys, Slayer's Victim, Inspires Public Offer of Reward

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Grief and bewilderment yesterday filled two Atlanta schoolboys, whose pet dog was mysteriously slain early last Saturday.

Ed, 11, and Joe, 9, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lindsey, of 1474 Beecher street, S. W., wept for Prince, their 130-pound German police dog, but Prince was dead. Mothers know the answers to almost all of children's questions, but yesterday Mrs. Lindsey was at a loss to answer the continued query of her two young sons:

"Mother, who shot Prince and why did they do it?"

In today's Constitution she has issued the following appeal:

Reward of $10 for information leading to arrest and conviction of person or persons who shot little Joe and Edward Lindsey's pet police dog, "Prince," on Saturday, March 5, between 7 and 9:30 a. m. in vicinity of Senn avenue and Richland road. Ra. 5889 or Ra. 9466.

Prince Was Not There.

It will not ease the hearts of Ed and Joe, however. Yesterday they wanted Prince. But he wasn't there. He wasn't there to lick their hands in silent devotion in their sorrow. He was not there to play tag with them; to run along with them and the rest of the gang when they went skating and riding on their wheel.

And yesterday, when they came home from school, they didn't hear his friendly bark as they came in. Later when they studied their lessons he wasn't there.

The two boys felt they could not talk about their pet. Bully, a fox terrier, jumped on their lap, brought balls and laid them at their feet and sat by their side devotedly in an effort to ease the wound in their heart, but it did not help.

The boys could not talk about Prince. But Mrs. Lindsey said:

"Early Saturday morning some of the neighborhood boys called Joe and Ed and told them Prince had been found dead in a near-by field. Everybody knew the dog; he was the pet of the neighborhood. The boys, and all their friends for that matter, sat guard over the dog's body all day Saturday. The death cast a shadow over the week-end activities of the children.

Even Baptism Deferred.

"My youngest son, Joe, was to be baptized Sunday night but he was so upset over Prince that he could not go through with it. We hope that something can be done about this unknown murderer of pets in this neighborhood who seems to have gone in for promiscuous shooting of dogs. There should be something done about it."

Mrs. Lindsey said that three years ago Judge, half-brother of Prince, was shot by a neighbor who said he "ran after his chickens." Prince was given to the children a few weeks after the death of Judge. The former soon became a lovable pet and playmate for the children.

His death Saturday has upset her sons to the extent that they have no interest in school, play, and worst of all, their meals, according to Mrs. Lindsey.

The shooting of the dog has been reported to the police, who have the bullet taken from the dog's head, which will be used to determine the type gun used by the killer.

Plane Passenger About To Have Pups

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP)—The radio operator at the Washington airport received today this message from a Newark-Washington airplane:

"Have veterinary at field. Passenger about to have pups."

Aboard the plane was J. N. Austin, broker of Old Westbury, Long Island, and his show dog, "So What of Milfordhaven," a fox terrier, who was expecting.

A shift in the wind made it necessary to land at Bolling field, instead of Washington airport. Austin hopped into a taxicab and hurried the dog to a veterinary.

RIVER SHAD HATCHERY PLANNED ON OGEECHEE

Joe D. Mitchell, director of the division of wild life, in conjunction with the Federal Bureau of Fisheries, will establish an experimental shad hatchery at King's Ferry on the Ogeechee river. The property on which the hatchery will be located is to be turned over to the division of wild life by H. M. Gardner.

It is believed this undertaking of shad propagation and restocking of Georgia shad waters will be followed by similar experiments on the Altamaha, Satilla and St. Mary's rivers.

By the artificial method of propagation it is estimated the increase in shad will be from 50 to 70 per cent greater than by natural conditions of propagation.

PROFIT TAX REPEAL DEFEATED IN HOUSE BY VOTE OF 78-33

17th Reciprocal Trade Pact —With Czechoslovakia— Signed by U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Administration Democrats in the house, beat down, 78 to 33, a Republican effort today to repeal the undistributed profits tax.

The repealer, offered by Representative Treadway, Republican, Massachusetts, was accompanied by a substitute measure which would have imposed income levies on firms, calibrated to the size of the firms.

Representative Vinson, Democrat, Kentucky, in charge of the administration measure, intimated the Republican proposal was drawn by a "high priest in the high citadel of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States." The charge was denied by Treadway.

Revision Efforts.

The administration's tax revision efforts tend toward modification of some existing laws rather than repeal. Leaders hope to defeat efforts to eliminate a proposed surtax on family-owned or closely held corporations.

While the house was considering "big business" from the standpoint of taxation, the senate had the subject presented to it in another form.

Foreign trade and debts had their part in the capital's affairs today.

17th Trade Pact.

The United States signed its 17th reciprocal trade pact. In it this country and Czechoslovakia agreed to make tariff reductions on scores of products.

Well informed persons disclosed that President Roosevelt contemplates putting the Hungarian debt problem in the lap of congress. The State Department, it was learned, has recommended that the President accept Hungary's offer to pay off her debt in installments —without interest.

Meanwhile, the administration's naval expansion program drew criticism from four members of the house naval committee. They said it would provide President Roosevelt with a "blank check" to "implement his foreign policies." The critique was signed by Representative Brewster, Republican, Maine; Church, Republican, Illinois; Cole, Republican, New York, and Shannon, Democrat, Missouri.

W. B. RATLIFF DIES; JOURNAL EXECUTIVE

Body of Assistant City Editor Taken to Texas for Burial.

Walter B. Ratliff, 41, assistant city editor of the Atlanta Journal, died yesterday morning in a local hospital after an illness of four months.

Funeral services were held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Spring Hill, with the Rev. Wallace Rogers officiating. The body was taken last night to Fort Worth, Texas, for burial.

Pallbearers were Tom Arnold, Dudley Glass, Wright Bryan, James S. Pope, Frank Hill, George Woods, Legare Davis, J. G. C. Bloodworth, Willard Cope, Channing Cope and Ed Bradley.

Born in Texas.

Born in Waco, Texas, he received his education in the public schools of Fort Worth. He became a reporter on the Fort Worth Record after graduation from high school, and worked for the Oklahoma News, in Oklahoma City, the Dallas Journal, the Dallas News, and as city editor of the Fort Worth Press.

In 1925 he went to Florida, where he was city editor of the Miami Tab, and later managing editor of the Palm Beach Times.

He came to Atlanta about 12 years ago, as a member of the news staff of the Atlanta Georgian, and soon became city editor of that paper. Resigning to join the public relations staff of the Georgia Power Company, he continued with them until 1930, when he joined the news staff of the Journal.

Regret Expressed.

He was a Mason, and a member of the Methodist church.

A resolution, expressing regret at the death of Mr. Ratliff, and extending sympathy to members of his family and the staff of the Atlanta Journal, was adopted yesterday by the mayor and general council of the city.

Surviving are his wife; three children, Blanche, Walter Jr., and Ida Jeanette, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Z. S. Ratliff, of Fort Worth.

Von Cramm, Noted Tennis Player, Held in Berlin on Morals Charge

Racket Star Had Returned to Germany Only Three Days Ago.

BERLIN, March 7.—(AP)—Baron Gottfried von Cramm, the world's second ranking tennis player, remained in custody tonight for examination "on suspicion of moral delinqencies."

Authorities were reluctant to discuss his case beyond admitting that he was being held for examination. It was explained that he had been summoned to police headquarters "for clarification and examination, pending which he is held in custody."

Von Cramm and his Davis cup teammate, Henner Henkel, returned to Germany three days ago after a world-wide tennis tour lasting six months.

The 28-year-old Von Cramm has been listed among the "first ten" players of the world since 1932, ranking second for the past two years. He was beaten by Don Budge, America's No. 1 player, in the finals of the Wimbledon and United States championships and gave Budge a terrific battle in the Davis cup interzone finals. He and Henkel won the American doubles title last fall then continued their tour to Australia during the winter.

SWAINSBORO, March 7.—(AP) State Senate President John B. Spivey today received the indorsement of the sixteenth senatorial district Democratic committee for renomination.

Treutlen county waived her rights to select a state senator under the traditional system of rotation. Emanuel, Treutlen, Johnson and Laurens counties make up the district.

Jim L. Gillis introduced a resolution for the Treutlen committee at the district meeting today stating "We are glad to waive that privilege in favor of our mother county of Emanuel." He presented Spivey's name and said it was "with sincere hope that he will be returned without opposition, believing that Spivey will again be named president."

The resolution was adopted unanimously. The district committee also by resolution asked voters to return Spivey without opposition.

"Don't Try To Trap Men, Endeavor To Please 'Em" Says Writer

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—Year by year, the annual dinner given by the cabinet to the President seems to grow pleasanter and is more like a big family party. There is only one solemn moment when we all rise and drink a silent toast to those who were with the official family and who have gone on to the Elysian Fields. I often wonder if they meet together there and, with the added wisdom of those who see beyond our earthly sphere, solve all our problems for us, and wish that we had reached a point where they could pass along their solutions.

After dinner, Miss Helen Jepson sang. She said her last number, "Coming Home," was one of her favorites, and it certainly was very beautiful.

Today the papers were given a story on a study made by the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, entitled "Why Women Work." This ought to end, once and for all, the statement which we have so often heard: "Why do married women hold positions? They keep others, who really need work, out of a job and they only do it to get some extra pin-money." A glance at the charts in this pamphlet shows how many women have dependents both in and outside the home. It is quite evident very few women work just for the joy of working, or because they are anxious to have a few more luxuries.

In Oklahoma last year, I was given a little book called "Civilization," written by Florence Drake and Thomas W. Alford, an Indian. Only lately have I had an opportunity to go through it. It is a truthful book about our little understood, and often maligned, American Indians and the work being done by the government among what remains of the original inhabitants of this country.

I think anyone really interested in the Indians will enjoy this book. I mention it now, because during the next year so much attention will be focused on our early Indian culture in preparation for the San Francisco Fair.

I wonder if anybody was as much excited as I was by the testimony given before the senate unemployment committee by J. C. Hormel, president of a meat packing company in Austin, Minn. Mr. Raymond Clapper, in his column, gives a very interesting account of the hearing. It is the idea of a yearly wage which thrills me. To me, it seems an ideal which would mean salvation to so many workers. One remark I chuckled over was Mr. Hormel's answer to Senator Hatch, of New Mexico, who asked him if he could carry his men on the pay roll even if business fell off sharply. Mr. Hormel replied: "That is what we do with our vice presidents." Good logic, but I wonder how many heads of business have given it much thought.

Now for the most exciting news—the crocuses are out on the White House lawn. It doesn't feel much like spring, but spring is surely on the way.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN.

LOW CEILINGS.

I have my eye on a luscious new blue herringbone velvet.

"I'll admit I'm stumped," said Agnes K. when we met her marketing the other morning. So we stopped in at the drugstore and had sodas together while we talked about her living room and dining room problems.

"In the first place, those low ceilings have me down," she explained. "And there are so many windows and so little wall space that just make it worse. In the dining room I have that new Chippendale set with French blue damask seats. On the wall there I have a Chinese ancestor portrait with lots of flowing blue robes. The living room has a sofa in American beauty and the love seat has a linen cover with natural ground and a design in many blues with a brilliant big flower design in yellows, rose, rust, purples. The walls now are a deep yellow with oak woodwork, but I want it all done over in a lighter, brighter color. The effect now is gloomy in spite of eight windows, mainly because of a deep porch across the house. There is a wing chair I want to have recovered and for it I have my eye on a blue herringbone velvet.

"Will you suggest a new color for walls and for carpeting? Also what about window treatment? I want Venetian blinds and will have them hung from top of window frame to give more height to the room. This is a very much-used house, so it must be practical though I want it to reflect personality and charm."

Answer.

The first thing to decide is the background—walls and floors. Can you paint the woodwork? Because that oak woodwork is the main thing that is keeping the effect of the room dark. Why not have walls and woodwork done over in a paler, fresher yellow, then have a soft blue carpet for the floor. The Venetian blinds we'd paint yellow too, but why not hang them clear up to the ceiling line? That would give still more height. Though you realize that Venetian blinds in themselves tend to lower the effect of the ceiling because of the horizontal lines. Straight hanging curtains from ceiling line to floor would be better for the illusion of height. They could be of yellow casement cloth or yellow taffeta and made to draw if you like—then they'd take the place of both shades and glass curtains. You could add side draperies in plain soft blue if you like, made to sweep the floor. In that case we'd be in favor of a figured material, or a stripe, on the wing chair rather than more plain blue.

As A Woman Sees It

Hildegarde Dolson
"I Talked to a Lot of Men . . ."

By the A. P. Feature Service.

NEW YORK—A slip of a girl in a red velvet dress with a white collar, who looks daring merely smoking a cigaret, has written a book called "How About a Man?"

You ask her why.

"Why?" she replies. "I wanted to make some money."

This is jolting, considering her wispy, fragile appearance, her blue eyes and blond hair. But that's how Hildegarde Dolson is—soft and dreamy, but really made of stern stuff.

"Why a book about men?"

"Because," she says, "women are more interested in reading about how to get a man than men are in reading about how to get a woman."

"Is that how you feel about men, too?"

"I think they're so nice," she exclaims. "We can't get along without them."

"That'll be good news here and there," her interviewer remarked.

They're Not Trappers.

"That's why I wrote my book," she went on. "Women will make more of an effort to please a man. Reading is part of that effort. They'll go further, too—try to look better, dress better. It's not a question of trapping a man—it's to do the things men like so they'll like you better."

Miss Dolson doesn't think a career is enough for any woman, but she hesitated about saying flatly that marriage is the ultimate feminine goal.

"It's a moot point," she said. "It's a fine thing if you fall enough in love. As for myself—well, I can tell you this, I haven't any hope chest."

There are two kinds of men Miss Dolson tries to avoid.

"I hate men who bully waiters," she says. "And I hate the superior male, the patronizing kind who feel that anything a woman may say isn't important just because a woman says it. Most men aren't like that," she ended jubilantly.

Wispy and Pretty, Too.

Miss Dolson, who is 29 and looks 19, is a small town girl (Franklin, Pa.) who made good in the big city (New York). She lives in Greenwich Village with a younger sister, likewise wispy and pretty. She contributes sharp, humorous pieces to the New Yorker magazine and writes advertising copy for a Fifth Avenue department store. To write her book, she worked week ends from March to June last year. Now she is working on a play.

"I definitely don't set myself up as an authority on love," she says. "I simply wrote down things I thought true, that my friends thought were true. I talked to a lot of men about it—particularly when I was writing the chapter on matrimony."

This, her interviewer assumed, was a reference to her foreword, which is a model for length:

"To acknowledge the invaluable aid of my accomplice, R. B., who advised and blue-penciled with a nice masculine candor."

"To tell the truth," she said, concluding the interview, "what with spending my week ends writing the book, and working on a play. I have begun to ask 'How About a Man?' myself."

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

HARD TO TEACH OLD TIMERS NEW PATHOLOGY.

In one of the medical journals in the nose and throat field a specialist in that field undertook to assay the diathermy method of extirpating infected tonsils, for the benefit of doctors who had not yet learned about the method.

He stated among his qualifications that "we have had representatives of manufacturers of physiotherapy apparatus advise us as to the proper use of the machines. Our results have been unsatisfactory . . ."

Needless to add! Would a competent surgeon have a representative of the manufacturer of scalpels advise him as to the proper use of the cutlery?

The medical profession indulges in entirely too much of that sort of bungling. If a doctor is in earnest and not a narrow-minded nincompoop, he will seek technical instruction from a master of the method before he attempts to use such a difficult technique in practice. The trouble with so many of these born specialists and bumptious surgeons is that they hate so like hades to acknowledge that any other doctor can teach them anything.

This learned critic then points out what he considers "the most serious obstacle in electrocoagulation of tonsils." That is "the extreme difficulty of completely eradicating all diseased tissue by this method. One case had ten treatments to each tonsil, another had nine treatments, and another had twenty-four treatments, and still all the tosillar tissue was not removed."

But weighed against this is the fact that the patients were still getting about fairly well. Had they undergone the risk of a major operation, who knows whether one of them would have succumbed to shock, hemorrhage, lung abscess or some unfortunate accident beyond the control of the busy operator who snicker-snacks the tonsils out and hurries to the next case.

Every doctor with any experience knows that it is only in exceptional cases that the standard surgical tonsillectomy in the best hands does not leave in the throat more or less tonsil tissue. And every honest doctor will admit that this is usually insignificant, that the patient as a rule has no further trouble attributable to the tonsils.

Any doctor who is capable of doing his own thinking knows perfectly well that there is no justification for an attempt to remove normal tonsil tissues from the throat by any method. All that is justified in any case is an attempt, by whatever method doctor and patient elect, to remove, disinfect, sterilize or pasteurize the focus or foci of infection in the tonsil, without disturbing surrounding normal tonsil tissue any more than is absolutely necessary.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Iodin.

For about a year I have been taking two drops of iodin in 1-2 tumbler of water two or three times a week. Yesterday I saw an article where you said one drop once a week. Have I taken too much? Will it do me any harm? (Mrs. D. J. A.)

Answer—Well, if you are still able to sit up and take notice it probably has done you no irreparable harm. A drop a week is a fair ration, but no harm if one gets two or three drops a week. Detailed instructions for taking an Iodin Ration will be mailed on request (no clipping, please) if you inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address. Nearly everybody needs it, particularly youngsters who are mopish and adults in their prime who begin to go stale and turn gray before forty.

Spinal Curvature.

Daughter, 14, has flat feet and for several months have noticed one shoulder is lower than the other and one hip seems larger than the other. She has been wearing arch supports. (M. D. R.)

Answer—You should place her under medical treatment for spinal curvature, and if possible have the supervision of an orthopedic surgeon. Prompt and thorough treatment may save her from permanent deformity.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

More than a year ago, I gave up my home and my husband because I thought there was more in life than he was giving me. In a few months I realized that the freedom I wanted consisted in a few flimsy friends and a round of empty entertainment. I want to get back what I once had and didn't appreciate—a home and a stay-at-home husband. The life of a 23-year-old divorcee isn't happy. I don't know why it is but she seems to attract the wrong sort of men who think she is the wrong sort of woman. My ex-husband and I have remained casual friends and I am conceited enough to believe that he has kept free of entangling alliances because he hoped that I would see my error. I will be so grateful to you for advice.

ARDENT ADMIRER.

ANSWER:

Only this bit of advice, dear girl: don't let false pride defeat you. Crawl on your hands and knees, if that's necessary, to tell your husband that you sold your birthright for a mess of poitage and didn't like the pottage. Admit that you played the fool in giving up your warm place and now want to snuggle in it once again.

Aren't women funny? A wife seldom gives her husband credit for bacon buying, bill paying and general good behavior unless he comes through with the particular thing she expected of him. That particular thing is usually an inconsequential matter by comparison with the big issues of loyalty and support but she can't see it this way when she's fuming and fretting with him because he forgot her birthday or wedding anniversary, or because he won't take her out to dance when she has the itching foot.

Thrown on her own resources, it doesn't take long for her to put the proper valuation on the comfort and security that a woman finds in a home with a husband, even if he won't dance.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

What on earth can I do about mother's sitting on my dates and watching us like a hawk? It's not that I mind her being around but that I resent the way she looks and acts when she's there. She asks the boy friends the most personal questions and embarrasses me to tears. I haven't got anything to say that she couldn't hear but it certainly does put a crimp in conversation to have your mother doing sentry duty on your dates. Can you help me? PEG.

ANSWER:

Peg, matters couldn't be quite as bad as you think they are or the boys wouldn't continue to date you. It is true, you know, that a young girl is quiveringly sensitive to what her parents say before her boy friends. It's a standing joke among mothers that whatever they say in the presence of their children's friends is wrong and many mothers confess that they are afraid to "speak in meetin'."

However, bad taste is bad taste even on the part of a mother and personal questions fired at visitors of any age, any sex come under the head of bad taste. Perhaps you can slip this suggestion over to your mother without offending her and persuade her to think twice before she starts on the catechism. After she's hawk-eyed you long enough to see how you work with the dates, and is satisfied that you can be trusted, she'll withdraw. You needn't worry. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Your Figure, Madame

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

NUTRITIONAL FACTORS KEEP YOU YOUNGER LONGER.

Women used to look middle aged at 30. Now we look incredibly young at 40 because we are turning to the new discoveries in nutrition which extend the prime of youth.

We are all eager for the factors in nutrition that have a direct bearing on appearance. Iron becomes an exciting mineral when we know that its presence in the diet affects the color in the hair. Recent light on this subject has shown that a lack of iron in the diet is associated with graying hair. Give the nutritionists time and we shall be meeting the gray hair problem with diet instead of dye.

What's more, an iron deficiency is a strain on the disposition and it is a scientific fact that "a cranky woman can be sweetened with a bit of iron." You must pick up this beauty ingredient bit by bit from your daily diet. Remember that the iron-rich foods are eggs, lean meat, spinach and other greens, molasses and whole grains.

Calcium is another mineral with a high beauty value. Experiments show that a higher than average calcium diet promotes better than average health, and we know now that it definitely extends the prime of life. Calcium, which you may recognize as lime, is essential to strong bones and teeth and a clear complexion.

If you go on a diet that supplies too little calcium your body does not use less of this precious mineral. What it needs for daily functioning is taken from your bones and teeth as illustrated by the old saying, "A tooth for every child." Milk is one of the best sources of calcium since it also supplies phosphorus, another important mineral. Phosphorus is closely identified with calcium in the regulatory functions of the body. Both are found in milk, eggs, cheese, nuts and vegetables.

Correct diet keeps you young.

There is a long list of minerals, about 17 in all. But isn't it a relief to know that if we get adequate amounts of calcium, phosphorus and iron, the others take care of themselves? This is true except in districts where iodine is not supplied in drinking water. Certain brands of iodized salt are used in these regions.

Vitamins generally are recognized as invaluable health and beauty aids. These elements are so well established that we associate Vitamin A with the youth and resilience of the skin as well as resistance to infection; Vitamin B with tone of the muscular and nervous systems; C deficiency with increased irritability, lowered resistance, sallowness of complexion and premature tooth decay; D—which doubles for sunshine—with the utilization of the important minerals; Vitamin G with health of the skin and better th average health and vitality.

Apply the newer knowledge nutrition to obtain these protect minerals and vitamins in y daily diet. The foods listed low should form the basis of diets, reducing, gaining or n mal.

Milk—One pint to 1 quart da For reducers, 1 pint buttermilk skim milk; or 1 glass skim m and 1 serving of cheese.

SHINE AT PARTIES THE YEAR ROUND; TEACH YOURSELF TO TAP THIS WAY

Don't shake your head when we say you can tap like this. If we could show you a slow-motion picture of a typical tap dance you'd quickly see that you can!

You'd see that the snappy dancers who dazzle you at parties and shows do over and over again six easy steps—which they combine in different ways.

In one evening you could teach yourself those six steps from diagrams—and after that what's to stop you from practicing a few tricky dances and being a hit at parties yourself?

Try the little combination of taps—a measure in a lively buck—that's illustrated in the picture. It uses the Straight Tap, Front Tap and Back Tap.

To do the Straight Tap, you stand on one foot, strike the floor sharply with the ball of the other foot. For the Front Tap, lift one foot back off the floor, swing it forward, striking the floor with the ball of the foot. For the Back Tap, reverse.

Just as easy to do the other tap steps—and you can have fun doing them right from the start. Fit them to your favorite tunes, combine them according to simple instructions and keep in mind what a grand surprise you're preparing for your friends. Why not show 'em by tapping when your turn comes to "shine" in the Big Apple?

With our 40-page booklet, Self-Instruction in Tap Dancing, you go quickly from the basic steps into practice combinations—then into the full-length buck and waltz routines which make you tops at parties and entertainments. Diagrams, simple instructions show you how to place your feet, fit steps to music.

Send 15c for our booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN TAP DANCING, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Rollison, president of Georgia Affiliated Democratic Women's Clubs, will be featured at the meeting of Fulton County Democratic Woman's Club tomorrow at the Henry Grady hotel, with Mrs. B. M. Boykin, the vice president, presiding.

Mrs. Wood speaks on "The Rural Problems in Georgia." She is director of the woman's division of the Department of Agriture and is well qualified to present this subject with understanding and interest, for she has made an exhaustive study of rural and urban women with especial emphasis on their problems and how each can help the other. Because of this knowledge and understanding, Mrs. Wood conceived the idea of the rural-urban conference, to be held in Atlanta on March 29 and 30.

The reception the Fulton County Democratic Woman's Club will tender delegates to the urban-rural conference and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, distinguished guest of honor, will be discussed. To Attend Sorority Costume Ball

'Him Books' Furnish Clever Idea For Masquerade Ball Costumes

By Sally Forth.

PICTURED today in The Constitution's society section is an attractive photograph of Eleanor Stafford and Mary Frances Broach wearing novel costumes in which they will appear next Saturday evening at the masquerade ball to be given by the O. B. X. sorority. Eleanor and Mary Frances are members of the junior class at Washington Seminary, the former being secretary of O. B. X. sorority.

Mary Frances is secretary of the Pi Pi sorority and with a group of her sorority sisters will attend the dance given by the rival sorority. It is a friendly rivalry, however, for Eleanor and Mary Frances are the closest of friends and conceived the idea for their novel dress from the "Him Books" which will swing from their wrists as they glide with their partners over the ballroom floor.

The "Him Books" are a far cry from the variety one finds in church pews and Sunday school rooms. Instead of the pages being filled with song verses, they are left blank for the autograph of each boy who breaks on Eleanor and Mary Frances during the dance.

Fashioned of crisp white taffeta, the short-skirted dresses bear names of "boy friends" penciled in bold red letters around the hems and on the short puffed sleeves. Their taffeta headdresses match their costumes and are also lettered in first names of "boy friends."

Eleanor and Mary Frances plan to have much fun with their "Him Books" at Saturday evening's dance. Sally wagers that when "Home, Sweet Home" is played for the final dance the pages of the "Him Books" will be crowded with names of partners who sought Eleanor and Mary Frances for dances during the evenings.

WHITE satin ribbons and large clusters of calla lilies will mark a large section of pews at the Grace Methodist church this evening when Ruth Stafford becomes Mrs. George Harbour Jr. at a beautiful ceremony.

The bride, following the usual custom of reserving a certain section of the church for the members of her family, also chose that members of the Tau Phi sorority, and the members of Mrs. E. F. Nelvelle's Sunday school class, of which she is a member, sit within the ribbons. It was a charming gesture for the lovely young bride to extend to her friends and it goes without saying that there will be a hundred per cent attendance of the two groups for the auspicious occasion.

A NEWLY ENGAGED couple, whose marriage will be a June event, leased their apartment last week. An amiable colored man was hired to repaint the walls. Anxious to see that there had been no mistake about the color, the groom-to-be called, inspected the premises, and left.

Shortly after, the sister of the groom-to-be dashed in, investigated, and left. She found the negro painter very patient and, apparently, much interested in the "goings on."

The bride-to-be, who had been playing bridge, suddenly developed a yen to see the apartment. She invited a girl friend to go with her. When they walked in they thought the painter looked terribly perplexed, but they overlooked it and strode about, commenting. Finally, from the top of a ladder came a worried voice, "Ah hates t' ask, but jes' which one of you ladies is dat man marryin'?"

IT LOOKS as if Atlanta can soon expect another visit from its out-of-town debutante, Wileyna Upshaw, who hails from Eufaula, Alabama.

Immediately at the close of the debut season, Wileyna "embarked" on a delightful Caribbean cruise. On her way home about two weeks ago, she passed through Atlanta and, on being questioned when she expected to return for a visit, she replied that she would be back whenever Nelson Eddy made his appearance here in concert.

Nelson Eddy will be here on Thursday, so Sally expects that Wileyna is making plans even now to keep her promise of an Atlanta sojourn.

Oglethorpe Chapter Elects Delegates For Assemblies

Annual meeting and luncheon of James Edward Oglethorpe chapter, Daughters of American Colonists, was held recently at the home of Mrs. Harry Malone on Fifteenth street. Mrs. George Breitenbucher, the regent, presided.

Delegates elected to attend the fourth state assembly of the Georgia state society to be held at the Piedmont Driving Club on Friday were the chapter officers, Mesdames George Breitenbucher, regent; John Rice, vice regent; C. D. Tebo, chaplain; W. B. Smith, recording secretary; Frampton Ellis, corresponding secretary; H. J. Gaertner, treasurer; W. H. Small, auditor; George Carpenter Jones, historian, and J. N. Bateman, W. C. Carpenter, R. H. Perkins and Harry C. Malone.

Elected to attend the general assembly in Washington, D. C., on April 23-25 were: Mesdames S. M. Page Rees, DeLos Hill, C. D. Tebo, Frances Brown Chase, Thomas C. Mell and Howard McCall and Robert Hunt, of Griffin.

Mrs. Breitenbucher thanked officers, chairmen and members for their co-operation; many genealogical and Bible records have been collected, a valuable set of "Scotch Histories" purchased, gifts were presented, among them letters written by Alexander Stephens, a chart of the Landgrave Smith family. Mrs. Bateman gave $5 for the President's birthday party in honor of the regent.

The chapter was invited by regent of the Major William Horton chapter, Mrs. J. I. Garrard, of Milledgeville, to unveil a marker marking the first permanent capital of Georgia in 1803. Milledgeville was the capital for more than 60 years. Miss Virginia Hardin talked about the trip, luncheon, speeches and unveiling.

Miss Nannelle Ellis rendered selections by MacDowell and Mrs. Harry Malone played an original selection on the piano. The table was beautifully decorated with jonquils and delphinium, the colors of the society.

Mrs. Frances Brown Chase and Mrs. E. R. Kirk poured coffee. Mrs. Malone, hostess chairman, introduced her committee: Mesdames Frances Brown Chase, E. R. Kirk, DeLos Hill, H. C. Shover, W. L. Randall, D. O. Oneal, J. N. Bateman, C. M. Love and John William Smith.

Do some of you still believe that flowers can't talk? Then why do we choose them to carry the message of love, congratulation or sympathy when we feel that no word can express the depth of our emotion? Why are they permitted to pass those closely guarded hospital doors where even the family cannot enter?

What is it they do when they go to that house of grief because we ourselves do not know any word of comfort that we might say should we ourselves go instead of the flowers? Why is it that a party is not a party until the flowers arrive to sing gay songs and make every one glad to be present? Surely you were thoughtless when you said that "flowers cannot talk."

If you were right and it is true that flowers cannot talk, then tell me how do they call to the birds, and the bees and to the other insects to tell them that their nectar is ready? During the daylight hours they tell them with bright colors and after night conceals these lovely colors by darkness, they tell them with their perfume.

They even tell us the hours as reliably as our clocks. Probably more so, for our clocks need to be wound, and sometimes we forget to wind them. They tell us the month of the year as easily as our calendars. They tell me what the year-round climate is, whether hot or cold, wet or dry. They tell me what kind of soil is there, even though the leaves might cover it over from my eyes. They even tell me what kind of a gardener you are.

Their voices are soft and sweet. They make no grammatical errors and they tell you no falsehoods. You can never be lonely where they are. And after you have listened to them, they quietly enjoy having you to talk to them.

Attend The Constitution's Spring Garden School on March 16, 17 and 18 at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Bolling's Appearance at Cracker Camp Delayed by Illness

(Editor's Note: Break o' Day is written today by Jack Troy, acting sports editor of The Constitution, pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill.)

SAVANNAH, March 7.—"Old Folks" is a real inspiration to the Crackers' youngsters here.

"Old Folks" started his 19th year in baseball today. He looked just as agile, just as spry as the peppiest rookie. In fact, he set a good example for the manager.

CLIMAX BLETHEN.

He had the old pepper in the pepper games and when he took laps around the field, he circled wide by the fences. "Old Folks" pitched nine of his 19 years in the game for the Atlanta Crackers.

But today he is, at the age of 44, a valued pitcher for the Savannah Indians. And he is the same old Climax Blethen. His stomach is as flat as a shad's front and he is the life of any baseball training party.

There's a lesson for all rookies in the career of Climax, who has the reputation of being able to handle one of the biggest chews when he is in action. That's how he got his nickname, of course.

Somebody asked him one day, "Is that a toothache?"

And he quickly responded, "No, it's Climax."

"Old Folks" has been quite a toothache to batsmen during his career, howevr.

At the age of 43, he had the best earned-run average in the Sally league. That was last year. He allowed just a fraction over two runs per nine innings.

The fact that he won only 10 games was explained by Manager Chick Autry, who is no spring chicken in baseball himself.

"Climax has been hounded throughout his career by a one and two-run jinx. He lost a lot of games by that margin last year. He pitched great ball for us," Autry said.

The team spirit of the veteran right-hander is something to see. Autry said in his entire career he never had run across a finer team player. Young players and veterans alike are very fond of him.

One of the amazing things about him today is that not only does he still have a lot of speed and stuff, but he can run like a deer. His legs are strong and sound.

"I feel right now as if I could keep on going for maybe 20 years more," he said as he opened his 19th season of spring training, "but of course when the old legs go, I'll go with them."

As said, the young players in baseball can take a lesson from the career of Climax, who always had made it a point of taking care of himself.

It is difficult to forget the picture of him on the mound at Ponce de Leon with a big bulge of Brown's Mule in his cheek as he fired the baseball overhanded toward the plate. He sort of seemed to bow his neck when he cut loose.

He ran into Eddie Rose and Leo Moon as the Crackers were finishing their workout and they said:

"Hello, 'Old Folks'."

"'Old Folks'?" he responded. "Hey, Chick," he yelled, "these pots are calling the kettle black again!"

COURAGEOUS FEAT.

Climax was pitching against Macon last summer and was hit on the end of the finger by the first ball hit. He called time out and walked into the dressing room.

Jack Sheehan, no relation to the Jack Sheehan who sends a lot of prospects to the Crackers, is the club's trainer. He looked at the finger and shook his head. "It's broken, Climax," he said.

"Well, what of it?" asked Climax. "Fix it up. I've still got nine innings of pitching to do."

So Sheehan put splints on the finger and bound it tightly. Climax thanked him and returned to the mound.

Best part of it all is that he not only returned to the firing line, but he beat Macon that afternoon with a broken finger.

The race was close between Columbus, Macon and Savannah and Climax said that after he had thrown a couple of times he forgot all about the injury.

He didn't take his regular turn for a spell after that, but he didn't miss very much time, at that. Savannah wasn't overstocked with pitchers, especially of his caliber. The Indians needed him and he was ready and willing, broken finger and all.

A ball club can't go wrong with players of the spirits of Climax Blethen, a grand veteran.

AUTRY DOING FINE JOB.

It would be interesting to know how many youngsters of today would have the heart to stay in there pitching with a busted finger. Not many, I daresay.

Chick Autry, the former New Orleans catcher, is doing a fine job as manager of the Indians.

Autry was plodding around the park today and Eddie Rose arose to remark, "You're running in a mighty small circle, Chick."

"I'm running a small circle to see that the others don't cut any corners," he fired back.

Another Cracker said, "Catchers sure are slow."

Whereupon Bill Beckman came through with a very shrewd observation, "Did you ever stop to think how many times a catcher has to bend down and get up during the course of a game?"

It's all very true, of course. A catcher's job is one of the toughest in baseball. He runs more risk of injury than any other player.

Autry probably had more hard luck catching foul tips on his fingers when he was in the Southern league than any two other catchers.

The Crackers have in Manager Paul Richards, on the other hand, a player who is unusually fast for a catcher. Richards can run. And he is, withal, a shrewd receiver.

ENGEL IS HEARD FROM.

Joe Engel, who soon (it is hoped) will be leading his Lookouts to Daytona Beach preparatory to the slaughter which will start after April 14, wired today:

"Notice you are so worried about your team that you have taken them to training long before the rest. Wish you luck. You'll need it."

Well, thanks, Joe. But it's not my team and it is not luck they'll be needing. All the Crackers regret is that they play Chattanooga only 22 games this summer.

Admiral, Seabiscuit Top $20,000 Feature

Track Aces Were Scheduled To Meet Twice Last Year, 59 in May 11 Race.

BALTIMORE, March 7.—(AP)—War Admiral and Seabiscuit, last year's top money winners and champions respectively of the 3-year-old and handicap divisions, who raced through 1937 and beat nearly every headline horse except each other, topped a star-studded list of 59 thoroughbreds named today for the $20,000 Dixie handicap May 11 at Pimlico.

Twice scheduled to meet last year, first Seabiscuit and then War Admiral dodged the issue, being scratched before going to the post.

For War Admiral, the Dixie will be a triumphant return to "Old Hilltop" where he raced to victory in the Preakness. The little brown horse is due in Maryland tomorrow from Hialeah where he won Saturday's $50,000 added Widener cup race.

Seabiscuit, twice loser of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap by a nose, first to Rosemont and then to Stagehand, will have a chance to regain some of his erstwhile glory if the Dixie finds both War Admiral and Seabiscuit at the post.

But the Dixie even then will not be a duel. J. H. Loucheim's Pompoon, third in the "big race" at Santa Anita, and runner-up to War Admiral in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, is entered along with such others as Calumet Dick, victor over Seabiscuit in last year's Narragansett special and Aneroid, winner of the Santa Anita Derby over C. S. Howard's 1937 money-winning champion.

J. P. C. CAGERS DINNER GUESTS

Members of the J. P. C. basketball team were honored by a surprise dinner given by Robert W. Jordan at his place on Ponce de Leon and Boulevard last night.

Carrying out the "J. P. C." thought, individual bricks of ice cream bore these initials and the large cake was decorated with the nick-names of every member of the team.

Officers of the club and their wives present were Mackey Kline, vice president; Max Mindel, secretary; Joe Zimmerman, governor of athletics and master of ceremonies, and Myer Balser, manager.

Coach Shep Lauter was honor guest.

Members of the team included Pony Minsk, Elliott Rubin, Steve Browdy, Enan Kulbresh, Gabby Greenberg, "Big" and "Little" Katz, Barney Menditz and Happy Ginsberg.

Their wives or dates were present. It was a great party with the hospitality being typified by the menu, which read, "order any darn thing you want."

Commercial League Holds First Meeting

The Atlanta Commercial league held its first meeting of the season at Beck & Gregg Monday night with four teams present. Among tentative entries were Gulf Refining, Merita Bakeries, Miller Service and Atlanta Linen. The league expects at least an eight-team entry.

Four new teams were added to the roster of the Sunday School and Commercial leagues who held a joint meeting at the same location.

BROWN INDICTED FOR SEDUCTION

RICHMOND, Va., March 7.—(AP) Ben Brown, middleweight boxer, was indicted by a grand jury here today on a charge of seduction brought by a Richmond woman who charged that the Atlanta, Ga., fighter violated a promise to marry her.

Judge John L. Ingram, of hustings court, signed a capias calling for the arrest of Brown.

Detective Captain Alex S. Wright said he telegraphed to Miamia, Fla., where Brown is believed to be, asking authorities there to make the arrest.

It was reported that the 19-year-old girl and her mother appeared before the grand jury today and told a story of courtship by Brown during the week of the Richmond police benefit boxing show last June when Brown, appearing in one of the main bouts, defeated Carmen Barth.

Brown Refuses To Discuss Case.

MIAMI, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Ben Brown, middleweight boxer, declined to comment tonight on his indictment by a Virginia grand jury on a Richmond woman's charge of seduction.

Brown said he had not yet been served with a capias and would reserve comment until after he was fully acquainted with the charge.

Home Runs Are Made By Batter---Not Ball

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Government scientists batted out the theory today that the wallop, not the baseball, is the major factor in home runs.

Wheeling their mechanical home-run swatter out to Griffith stadium, Bureau of Standards experts loaded it up with American and National league balls and aimed it at the far-flung fences.

The very first shot was a dandy—it cleared the centerfield fence, soared over the bleachers and fell beyond the wall—the longest hit ever banged out in the American league park.

"Wow," exclaimed Edward B. Eynon Jr., secretary of the Senators, "that beats Babe Ruth's best home run!"

The scientists fed the federal fence-buster another ball.

Wham!

It was the same story—over the garden wall and out of the park.

"We've got to tame the machine down," said Dr. H. L. Dryden, "or it'll bankrupt us."

TECH GRID WORK TO END MARCH 19

Alex To Drill Non-Baseballers, Trackmen Later Than That, However.

Georgia Tech's spring football practice will officially end with a regular game March 19 on Grant field, but punters, passers and some freshman candidates will continue after that date with three drills a week for a couple of weeks, Coach W. A. Alexander announced yesterday.

"I'll turn all the baseball and track men loose at that time," he said, "but some of the others will be kept out to give them more experience. Most likely, all the experienced linemen will be released, too."

Jim Clay, who was reported out for spring sessions, discarded his crutches yesterday after it was revealed he didn't have a cartilage in his leg. He will report for the three-a-week drills.

Bobby Beers, who has been out the entire period with an injured knee, will return today but won't do anything but punt and pass for the rest of the season. Charlie "General" Wood has missed four practices with a pulled muscle but said yesterday he would return before spring training ends.

Fletcher Sims was out helping Bobby Dodd with the backs yesterday.

Practice was devoted almost entirely to signal drills after a short tackling session.

5 Teams Enter Constitution Pin Event

The entry list for the sixth annual Atlanta Constitution doubles bowling tournament opened strong Monday evening with five formidable teams of men signing for this popular contest. The tournament will be bowled Saturday, March 19.

Walt Adair and Charlie Oliphant, of Marietta, were credited with filing the first out-of-town entry and are practicing daily on their local alleys for the meet.

George and John McGuire, who won the "brothers doubles" championship for the state by virtue of a five-game victory over the Robertson brothers two weeks ago, believe that they can "go places" if they can get as hot on March 19 as they did in their last doubles match.

A father-and-son doubles team that is destined to set a snappy pace will be composed of Louis B. Outler and his son Robert. Louis is one of the high average men of the city and holds the high single game official record for the local alleys, while his son is one of the top average bowlers in the high school pin loop.

A. J. (Speedy) Sossong will bowl with George H. Tyler. If they can flash the form that won them the runner-up title in the recent Georgia doubles, they will be hard to beat.

The old reliable team of George (Tubby) Small and John Conyers filed entry yesterday. They won the first staging of this popular event and will be rolling in their sixth consecutive Constitution doubles in this meet.

There is no entry fee to be paid other than the cost of the five games to be bowled. The games may be rolled at either 1:30, 5 or 7:30 p. m., of that day.

Tech Five Would Spurn Sugar Bowl Bid in '39

Tech Footballers Will Be in California; Mundorff Says Ed Jones Star of Tournament.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

In the event that Georgia Tech's championship basketball team is invited to New Orleans to play in the annual Sugar Bowl game next year—and it is customary to ask the winner of the Southeastern conference tournament—the invitation will be refused.

Coach Roy Mundorff said yesterday since four of his star players graduate and other members of the team, including freshmen who play football, will be in California for the grid game with the Golden Bears, it would be foolish for Tech to accept.

"Sims, Johnston, Jones and Jordan will leave school," he said, "while Anderson, Smith and nearly every freshman plays on the football team. We could not accept and give the fans the show they are entitled to."

Mundorff also revealed he had refused a bid to play in the national tournament at Kansas City, which seeks to bring together the outstanding teams of all parts of the country.

ED JONES STARS.

Ed Jones, who played only 20 minutes the entire tournament, was the star of the meet.

The speedy forward had been out for a couple of weeks with an injured ankle and didn't start any of the tourney games.

"Exactly the same thing was happening in the finals that happened in the semi-finals last year," Mundorff explained.

Last year we were leading Kentucky by a comfortable margin and only two minutes left. Then we blew up, started shooting wildly and lost the game.

"Saturday night against Ole Miss in the finals, it nearly became the same disastrous story. We had built up a 15-point lead but Mississippi got hot and with eight minutes to play we were leading by only 2 points, 44-42.

LUCKY THIS TIME.

"But I was lucky, this time, to have Jones sitting on the bench. I sent him in and immediately the boys settled down and really played basketball. He simply took the situation in hand, got 6 points himself and made the players become a team again, instead of five individualists.

"While I'm not taking any credit from the rest of the players—they all played wonderful ball—I do think Ed saved the day and the team will tell you that themselves."

"What about 'Country' Graham?" we asked.

"The greatest shot in the country," Mundorff emphatically replied. "I have never seen this Hank Luisetti, of stanford, but nobody could be any better shot than Graham.

"He shoots from outside the circle—always a one-handed, push shot and going away from the basket at the same time. We changed our defense for him and had a couple of men guarding him all the time—including Anderson—and you see, he still got 23 points."

It still remains a big question just how Bo Johnston was left off the first all-conference team. However, many of the coaches left before the end of the tournament and never saw Bo perform. Therefore, could not very well cast their votes for him.

Bill Jordan was selected at one of the forwards, giving him a dual mythical honor. He was an All-Southeastern end on the gridiron last fall.

MERCER BEATEN IN DIXIE FINALS

JACKSON, Miss., March 7.—(AP)—The Mississippi College Choctaws, of Clinton, Miss., fought off the savage attacks of the Mercer University Bears, of Macon, Ga., here tonight to successfully defend their 1937 Dixie Conference championship by the score of 47 to 42.

Mercer finished with a flourish and came within two points of overtaking the Mississippians after trailing almost hopelessly most of the game. Irwin, elongated center of the Bears, looped in baskets from far out in the court to threaten the early Mississippi College lead. With 10 minutes to go, the Bears pushed up within two points of the Choctaws but that was the closest they came.

Irwin, Mercer center, was named on the all-tournament team.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 7.—(AP)—Appointment of three assistants to Football Coach Elton (Tad) Wieman was announced tonight by the Princeton University council on athletics.

Continuing a Princeton-Michigan exchange which sent Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler and two former assistants to Ann Arbor, Princeton will bring Michigan's basketball coach, Franklin C. (Wally) Cappon, here as Wieman's football backfield coach and as basketball coach.

Ed Walker, head coach at Mississippi, will become end coach, and Charles L. Ceppi, Princeton's star tackle a few years back, line coach.

When John Rucker Reports, He'll Get Shot at Initial Sack.

By JACK TROY.

SAVANNAH, March 7.—This reporter tonight received a wire from Pat Moulton, old Auburn end, now a sports writer on the Mobile Press, revealing the fact that Jack Bolling, whom the Crackers are figuring on for first base, is ill at his home and that the date of his reporting to the Atlanta camp is indefinite.

Bolling was stricken last Saturday and it is not determined whether he has toxic poison or measles, according to Moulton.

"Can't say when he will be able to report as he is a pretty sick boy right now," Pat wired.

When Manager Paul Richards was informed of Bolling's illness he said: "In that case, we'll continue to use Frank Werk at first. He is doing a good job. And when John Rucker reports, we'll try him there, too."

QUITS COLLEGE.

Rucker, a nephew of Nap Rucker, decided to quit college to play professional baseball with Atlanta. The date of his arrival here is not definite.

It may develop before it is all over that Atlanta will have to accept offers of a first baseman from a major league club, but only time can determine that.

Manager Paul Richards said at the conclusion of today's workout: "Everything is swell and you can quote me as saying if we get three weeks of such weather, we'll get the jump on all the other clubs when the bell rings, and I don't mean maybe."

It was cold enough for blankets in early morning and so hot around noon that anyone who stood around in the sun for any length of time could easily get blistered.

This is, without exaggeration, the finest weather the Crackers have had for spring training in at least five years. Heretofore, there has been rain and wind and sometimes cold.

All concerned knock on wood whenever they bring up the subject of the weather, however. It simply has been too good.

FINE WEATHER.

It's not surprising to the fine people of Savannah, of course. They knew it all the time.

There are not many Crackers out of the fold now. Rookies Black and Parker took their first work out today. Chatham and Hil were on the scene for the first time and drilled for three hours.

Frank Werk continues to look very impressive around the initial sack.

The oldsters on the club have made quite a point of it. Werk actually is a good left-handed pitching prospect, but he had rather play first. He handles himself well and he can hit.

John Pezzullo, the stoutly built left-hander, drew the praise of Manager Richards and the heartiest of recommendations of Climax Blethen today.

Richards had to caution Pezzullo to ease up during batting practice several times. The big fellow just can't throw at half speed, it seems.

Manager Chick Autry, of the Indians, has explained that by saying "Pezzullo seems to feel that there's a championship hanging on every game he works, I liked that spirit in him."

Blethen said this: "If he is given plenty of work he'll make the Crackers a great pitcher. The more he works, the better he pitches. He was wild at the start of last season but he settled down and pitcher very steadily until the end.

NO-HIT GAME.

"That no-hit, no-run game he pitched against Mobile was a dream of a game, and, of course, he was poison to Macon. He beat the Peaches in the play-off.

"I hope the boy is given plenty of work. He can stand more work than most pitchers. He thrieves on it."

Manager Richards decided today to use Warren Huston, who is here on option from the A's at shortstop.

Al Rubeling apparently has what it takes to hold down second base. He and Chatham haven't had a chance to start working together as yet, but it won't be long. There may be some infield practice tomorrow.

Emil Mailho swung into action today and was discovered at second base. He was performing very aptly for a left-hander and might have stayed there all day if Richards hadn't chased him into the outfield.

MAILHO AMBITIOUS.

"Well, what the heck," he said. "If Mauldin can play third. I'll guarantee I can play second. I may demand a trial at first base before the camp ends."

The younger pitchers are practically ready to start curving 'em with a will.

The list of 31 players in camp includes 16 pitchers, six infielders and five outfielders and four catchers.

They are as follows:

Pitchers—Bill Beckman, Darwin Cobb, Art Evans, John Pezzullo, Tom Sunkel, Lowell Hamons, Luman Harris, Larry Miller, Ted Pritchett, Onnie Robinson, James Marsh, Ross Stuart, Frank Werk, Bob Durham, John Michaels and Leo Moon.

Catchers—Richards, Dewey Williams, Van Antwerp and Stanley Bolton.

Infielders—John Hill, Buster Chatham, Al Rubeling, Warren Huston and Dudley Parker.

Outfielders—Eddie Rose, Marshall Mauldin, Emil Mailho, Ed Black and Jim Trexler.

PURDUE'S CARD.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 5.—(AP)—Purdue University's baseball team will play 26 games this season, including 12 Big Ten encounters.

Davis Sinks Foul Shot With Five Seconds Remaining.

By ROY WHITE.

Jack Davis' foul goal in the last five seconds of play gave Russell High a 26-to-25 victory over Grif- fin High Monday night on the Fulton High court in the finals of the annual North Georgia Inter- scholastic conference tournament. It was Russell's second tourney title in four years.

A record crown that jammed every available inch of space in the gymnasium saw one of the hardest-fought games ever played for a championship here. The score was tied a half-dozen times and three minutes before the game ended the score was dead- locked at 25-all.

Davis started dribbling down townard the Russell goal with Strickland straining every nerve to recover the ball and the two committed a double foul, with only five seconds left in the game. It was the fourth foul on Davis and meant his banishment from the game, but cool as the proverbial cucumber, he sank the try to give Russell a one-point lead.

Strickland missed his try and the game ended with both teams scuffling for the ball near mid- court.

Russell took an early lead of 10 to 5 at the quarter, due largely to two long field goals by Kirk- land and one by Davis.

Griffin recovered the lost ground and took the lead, 13 to 11, at the half, holding Russell to a single foul during the second period, as Weaver sank two and Strickland one field goal each.

Russell came back with nine points in the third quarter against only three for Griffin and the East Point team led, 20 to 16, at the third quarter. Long field goals again played an important part in Russell's four-point margin.

Play in the fourth period was wild, with both teams cutting loose from all angles.

Kirkland, who four years ago gave Russell its first champion- ship with several long field goals, was the high scorer with 10 points. Davis followed with nine, three field goals and three fouls. The nine points gave Davis 51 for the tournament and high scoring honors.

S. McKeever, Treasurer Under 'Robbie', Is Dead

NEW YORK, March 7.—(UP) Stephen W. McKeever, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who was just plain "Jedge" to the Flatbush faithful, died today. He would have been 84 in October, and was the oldest head of a major league club.

McKeever was sternly opposed to disposing of his 50 per cent of Dodger stock as long as he lived, and it was believed his death might result in reorganization of the club—potentially regarded as one of the most valuable proper- ties in baseball—with possible eventual sale to one of many bid- ders who have tried unsuccessful- ly to buy it.

McKeever, ill for a week of bronchial pneumonia, died early today at his home in Brooklyn. Surviving are his wife, Elizabeth, and a daughter, Mrs. Jams Mul- vey, whose husband is secretary of the Dodgers.

McKeever became associated with the Dodgers in 1912. He and his brother, Edward, had pros- pered in the contracting business in his home borough of Brooklyn. At that time the late Charles H. Ebbets, sole owner of the Dodgers, built Ebbets field with funds which his friends, the McKeevers, provided. In return, they were given a 50 per cent block of stock and became club officials.

Ebbets and Edward McKeever died within two weeks of each other in 1925 and then began a tumultous era at Brooklyn. Con- stant squabbling, bickering and court battles followed their deaths. Neither faction would sell to the other—and each controlled an even division of stock.

The Ebbets interests scored a victory in 1927 when, with Mc- Keever seriously ill, they ap- pointed Wilbert Robinson as man- ager for three years. McKeever hated Robinson and their feud was one of the most famous in baseball.

In 1929, when Robinson's con- tract expired, McKeever blocked his reappointment and the battle became so furious that National League President John A. Heydler intervened and got the contending factions together on a compromise which resulted in Robinson's ap- pointment as manager for another two years.

Dressen Optimistic Over Vols' Chances.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 7.—(AP)—Little Charley Dressen, man- ager of the Nashville Vols, came to town today highly optimistic over the flag chances of his club.

The fiery pilot, who served last last year as manager of the Cin- cinnati Reds, said he would confer with President Fay Murray and then proceed to Tallahassee, Fla., where the club begins spring train- ing activities Thursday.

Dressen is banking on the work- ing agreement with the Brooklyn Dodgers to bring Nashville about six top-notch players. Dressen and Larry MacPhail, the Dodgers' general manager, were associated together at Cincinnati.

Seven players were in uniform today and the remainder of the first contingent was expected within the next two days.

JAPAN WILL BAR SOLDIERS FROM NEXT OLYMPICS

Warring Country Consid- ers Cancellation of Tokyo Games.

LONDON, March 7.—(AP)—Ja- pan's internal dispute over the ad- visability of playing host to the Olympic games two years hence flared anew today as British Olympic officials reiterated their opposition to Tokyo as a site for the games.

War Minister General Gen Sugiyama precipitated a new argu- ment over the Olympic situation by announcing, at Tokyo, that military authorities had decided to prohibit soldiers on the active list from taking part in the games and recommending that they be cancelled entirely if the Chinese- Japanese conflict continues.

This view brought an immediate protest from Professor Jigoro Kano, Japanese delegate en route to Cairo for the international Olym- pic committee meeting opening at Cairo Thursday.

"I know of no reason for any- one saying anything about aban- doning the games," Professor Kano said at Alexandria, Egypt. "The war in China? That's nothing."

Meanwhile, Lord Aberdare, British delegate to the I. O. C. meeting, reaffirmed his intention of opposing Tokyo as a site for the games if an occasion arises during the 10-day session.

Professor Kano declared that Japan was fully prepared for, and determined to hold, the games on schedule. He thought it unlikely that any question over Tokyo's se- lection as a site would arise at the Cairo meeting.

"There's no reason for it to come up," he said.

Though Great Britain will be in the opposition camp, Japan will be able to count upon Italy and Germany during the Cairo ses- sions, it was indicated today.

RIVER DEVELOPMENT ASKED BY GEORGIANS

Flint Plea Lost, Improvement of Chattahoochee Recommended.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Royce Kershaw, of Columbus, Ga., engineer of the Chattahoochee Valley Chamber of Commerce, told the board of army engineers today savings in freight rates on gasoline, peanuts, and lumber alone would justify proposed improvement of the Apalachicola, Chattahoochee and Flint river system in Georgia and Florida.

The division engineer disapproved the improvement so far as the Flint river was concerned, holding the additional cost was not justified and benefits expected were directly assured by recommended improvement of the other two rivers.

Acompanying the Georgians to the hearing were Senators George and Russell, and Representatives Cox, Owen and Pace, of Georgia, and Representative Caldwell, of Florida.

GUILD TO PRESENT 'GAY NINETIES' PLAY

'Ten Nights in a Barroom' Starts Tonight.

Handbills, printed in characteristic "Gay Nineties" style, were distributed yesterday announcing the Atlanta Theater Guild's interpretation of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" to be presented at 8:30 o'clock tonight, tomorrow and Friday nights at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium.

The handbills extended an invitation to the audience "to remain after the drop of the final curtain and enjoy singing present-day song hits." The words were printed on the reverse side of the program. Among them are "After the Ball" and "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

In the cast are Paul Carpenter Jr., Mrs. ZeDene Swift, Mrs. Verdery Boyd, Miss Ann Voick Floyd, Richard Killibrew, Don Bolton, Melvin Everitt, John Houck, Sydney F. Owen and George Bush. Appearing in in-between-the-acts skits will be Helen Seydel, Betty Lou Houck Smith, Coleman Kimbro, E. Edmund Phillips, Jim Causey, Martha de Golian, Don Bolton, Dorothy Hinman and Harold Tyler.

The melodrama is being produced under the direction of Paula Causey. Vernon Williams is technical director.

ILLINOIS WOMAN DIES IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

MARIETTA, March 7.—Mrs. J. W. Henkel, 46, of Winnetka, Ill., was killed when the automobile in which she and her husband were en route to Florida for their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary collided with another automobile on the highway about a mile north of here.

Deputy Sheriff Dewey Gable said the other car was driven by F. A. Tees, of Hamilton, Ont., against whom no charges had been made.

Gable said he believed the crash was caused by the sudden stopping of an automobile occupied by three men he listed as Lloyd, Sam and Elbert Lake, who were en route to visit a relative in Atlanta. They were released at Mr. Henkel's request, he said.

SCHOOLBOARD TO STUDY LIBRARY BOOK BUYING

Dr. Collins asked publishers and authors to submit sample copies of books, together with bids.

STATE DEATHS

ALMA E. JOHNSTON.

DAWSON, March 7.—(AP)—Alma E. Johnston, 57, chairman of the Terrell county commission, died of a sudden illness at his home near Sasser late yesterday. A member of the county commission six years, Mr. Johnston also was an outstanding farmer and businessman of Terrell county. In addition to his farms, he operated a warehouse at Sasser. He was an enthusiastic worker for road improvements in the county, and it was largely through his efforts that work was started on the new highway between Dawson and Smithville. Work on the highway will be completed in the near future. Recently he had been working to secure rights of way for the new road between Dawson and Morgan. Surviving him are his wife; a son, Dr. Joseph Johnston, of Sylvester; a daughter, Mrs. Edward Grubbs, of Lumpkin, and two brothers, Charles and George Johnston, of Sasser. Services were held today in Macedonia Baptist church near Sasser.

MRS. RAYMOND HANSARD.

LAWRENCEVILLE, March 7.—Mrs. Raymond Hansard, 17, died at her home in East Lawrenceville Saturday after a short illness. She was a member of the Church of God. She is survived by her husband, two stepsons and four sisters, Mrs. Thelma Tullis, Mrs. Lulu Phillips, Mrs. Grace Criswell and Mrs. Ruby Brooks, all of Lawrenceville. Her father, Melvin Ashe, died last Monday. Services were held today at the Church of God, the Rev. Mr. Justice officiating. Burial was in Old Field cemetery, near Suwanee.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS No. 38 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Since Tarzan now could see no way to aid his friends, he decided to wait until they had reached the Zambeh village. There he would make a final, desperate effort. Meanwhile he would visit the cave where he had left the invalid Dr. Brooks in the care of Nkima.

. . . During the ape-man's absence, Nkima had been enjoying himself immensely. It gave him a sense of great importance to care for the sick man as Tarzan had instructed, to bring him food and water, and to administer the curative herbs the Jungle Lord had left.

Time passed without a sign of savage raiders. As the danger became remote, Nkima grew braver, as was his habit. Sometimes he sat before the cave with a stick in one hand, pretending how he would defend the white man if the blacks should discover the hidden cave.

But the little monkey's heroic fancies could not withstand the assault of reality. A savage patrol did come in search of the escaped Dr. Brooks. And when Nkima saw the fierce blacks, he flung down his encumbering stick, shrieked in terror, and leaped into the trees.

Furniture stored in the second floor of Sterchi Brothers' store next door was damaged by smoke and water, and Murdock's Transfer Company and Gordon Candlewicks suffered smoke damage.

TRUCK LAW CHANGE WILL BE ADVOCATED

Uniformity To Be Sought at Conference Tomorrow in South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 7.—(AP)—A state-wide meeting in the interest of the passage of a uniform truck law increasing the present limitation of 20,000 pounds and 90-inch width was called today.

A petroleum industries committee, representing many major oil companies, and the Motor Transportation Association of South Carolina jointly set the session for Wednesday here.

The committee said in a statement that unless the limit was raised "three-fourths of the trucks now operating will be removed from the highways, causing among other things an increase of approximately 60 cents a ton cost of fertilizer to farmers, cripple the farm produce market where truck growers now ship in less than carload lots, loss of employment to approximately 35,000 employes of trucking firms, loss of revenue to thousands of service station owners and employes, and increase the cost of food and other articles in South Carolina.

"The textile mills will likewise be affected in that Georgia and North Carolina will be able to undersell them with the additional cost of transportation. Competitors in adjoining states will be able to undersell our manufacturers because of the availability of motor transportation to the consuming centers."

'MODEL CITIZEN' STOPS EXTRADITION ATTEMPT

CASSOUOLIS, Mich., March 7. (AP)—"Model Citizen" Frank Bentley, who fled from North Carolina state prison 12 years ago after serving six years of a 30-year term for killing a man, apparently frustrated a community attempt to prevent his extradition today.

In near-by Buchanan where Bentley-Koler Holsclaw on the prison record—had lived under his assumed name, neighbors and associates had drawn up petitions to state and county officers testifying to his character. But Bentley, while expressing gratitude, said:

"I want to go back and get this thing straighted out—and then come back here."

CARIBBEAN MARINES END WINTER 'GAMES'

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, March 7.—(AP)—Winter maneuvers of the United States marines in the Caribbean were brought to a close today.

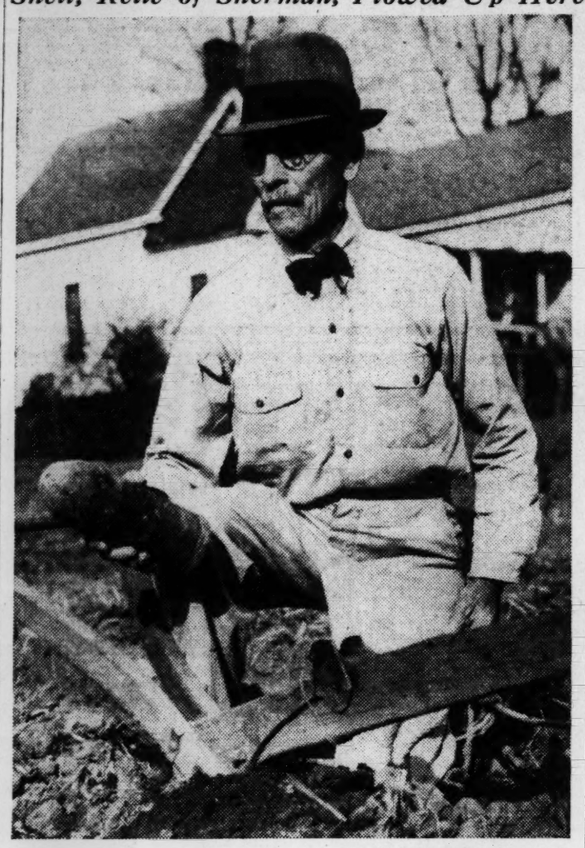

Participating aircraft passed in review before Admiral J. W. Johnson on the flagship New York, at Culebra. The air squadron which came here from Quantico, Va., for the war games, will depart tomorrow.

Squadron three of the naval patrol, stationed at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, left for home today by way of Trinidad.

FOUR SAVED IN SEA FIRE.

STUART, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Four men narrowly escaped death today when the 30-fot fishing cruiser, Marcella, caught fire and burned at sea about four miles off St. Lucie inlet.

Shell, Relic of Sherman, Plowed Up Here

When F. L. Tanner, of 1352 Avon avenue, S. W., began early plowing on his 10-acre home-tract yesterday his plow stirred up memories of Sherman's march through Georgia during the War Between the States. Here's Tanner holding the giant shell fired probably as the Confederates sought to stop the invading forces in 1864. The shell stumped Tanner and his mule for a minute, but a heavy heave pulled it out of the ground. This is a Constitution photo tip.

U. S. WILL ISSUE 31 NEW STAMPS

Postage Portraits To Honor Memory of Presidents.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Postmaster General Farley said today that President Roosevelt had approved tentatively a series of 31 new postage stamps to replace during the next year postage stamps now in use.

The new issue first major change since 1923, will include portraits of every deceased President and also of Benjamin Franklin, the first postmaster general, and Martha Washington. Federal law provides that no living person can be thus honored.

The series will include four new denominations: Four and one-half-cent, 18-cent, 35-cent and 40-cent.

The Coolidge stamp will cost $5.

TWO IN FAMILY DIE FROM AUTO INJURIES

McMINNVILLE, Tenn., March 7.—(AP)—Death riding the highways struck twice in the same family within a few hours as 12-year-old Roberta Artelia Barnes died early today shortly after her 10-year-old brother, J. T. Barnes Jr., had been killed.

Both children were struck by an automobile late Sunday as they trudged along the highway to their home, carrying sawdust from a near-by lumber mill.

F. D. R.'S EARNINGS WORRY HOFFMAN

'I Think I Ought To Know,' Republican Says.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP) Representative Hoffman, Republican, Michigan, suggested in the house today that President Roosevelt should tell the nation what salaries he and his son, James Roosevelt, are "making on the side" since he advocates publicity for corporation salaries.

"I think I ought to know about the $150,000 James is reported to have received from his insurance business and about the $500,000 he is supposed to have made in the last four years," Hoffman said.

"If it's immoral, or unmoral, not to inform 130,000,000 people about these (corporation) salaries, why shouldn't the people know how much the President and his son are receiving on the side."

Bill Would Slow River Styx Traffic

TRENTON, N. J., March 7.—(AP)—A bill was introduced in the general assembly tonight to limit the speed of boats to 10 miles an hour on the River Styx.

It also makes drunken and reckless boating punishable offenses.

But it won't make life any easier for Ferryman Charon, reputed these countless ages to use only a pole in propelling his mythological craft across the subterranean stream.

The River Styx referred to in the bill runs into North Jersey's Lake Hopatcong.

Girl Cheerfully Awaits Scalpel In Life Gamble

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 7. (UP)—Sylva Eugenia Davis cheerfully and eagerly wagered her life on a surgeon's scalpel tonight in a spinal operation that will mean a "50-50" gamble for freedom from the paralysis which has locked her limbs for 20 years, or death.

"She sobbed and cried when I asked her to give up the operation," said her mother, Mrs. Carlos C. Davis, who waits hopefully for tomorrow morning when her fourth and youngest child submits to the operation, which, even if successful, will only give the girl partial control over her arms and legs, afflicted with spastic paralysis since birth.

"The operation is a dangerous one," said her doctor, who demanded anonymity as a condition of discussing the case. "But the patient has accepted the hazard fully aware of what's involved. In fact, it's being done at her request.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

WATCHING THE STARS AT THE MIKE.

HOLLYWOOD, March 7.—Radio diary. . . . The Jack Benny show. . . . . Kenny Baker and his wife have been sitting in the first row of the auditorium for two hours, reading fan mail. . . . Mary Livingtone waits for Husband Benny. "Are you going to Lake Arrowhead with Jack?" she is asked. "No," says Mary, "too busy with our new house in Beverly Hills. It's now in the torn-up stage." . . . "It anybody here today?" inquires the star, Mr. Benly, dragging a topcoat on his arm. "I'm all set for Arrowhead, with red flannels—everything except a dog sled." . . . Andy Devine, looking at his script, "Is this all? Seems awful thin." . . . After the show, Miss Livingstone states, "We made more mistakes today than ever, simply terrible."

Next door, with Charlie McCarthy—Edgar Bergen, Don Ameche, and Dorothy Lamour. . . . "Good thing you weren't here for the rehearsal," says Bergen. "It was awfully draggy, slow and dull." "You mean it was bad," quips Charlie, the Dummy. . . . Don Ameche hails Mary Livingstone, who has dropped by after her show. "Why don't you come to see me when Jack's away at Arrowhead?" says Don in a loud stage whisper. "Are you sure honey (Mrs. Ameche) would like it?" giggles Mary. "Oh for goodness sake—don't let that stop you," says Don. "Fine," says Mary—"Oh, I've got to go now—here comes Jack—see you at the Trocadero tonight." "Are you going to the Troc?" asked Don. "Yes," says Mary wearily, "we've gotta eat!" . . . Guest star Rosalind Russell looks down McCarthy's neck to see how he is made. When she straightens up, Charlie cracks, "Now, are you satisfied?"

At the Mickey Mouse broadcast—Minnie Mouse chews gum all during the show. Afterwards she signs the books of the younger set in the audience. "You can't sign autographs—it's against Mr. Disney's rules," says an official. "Please—just one more," pleads Minnie, whose flesh and blood adulation, I fear, has gone to her—pen.

With Tyrone Power and Phyllis Brooks at the Hollywood Playhouse program. . . . Cary Grant is there, of course—in a wet raincoat. And, by the same love token—so is Janet Gaynor. "I'm starved," says Tyrone to Janet. "We've been rehearsing since 1 o'clock this afternoon (it is now 7 o'clock). "You poor man," sweetly sympathizes Janet.

Ad-libbing at the "Theater of the Air" . . . . Madeleine Carroll—"My make-up is by courtesy of Wanger Studios, "Swell," says Walter. "We'll charge it up to you." . . . Herbert Marshall—"Are my feet in? What do I say?" . . . Cecil B. De Mille—"Have you seen 'Bringing Up Baby'?" Marshall, Carroll and Wanger—"No." "You should," says Cecil, "RKO made it." (De Mille works for Paramount, Miss Carroll for Wanger, Mr. Marshall just finisned a picture for Universal.)

"I went to a preview with Jackie Moran," says Deanna Durbin angrily at the Eddie Cantor air show, "and now I'm supposed to be madly in love with him." Deanna wears long silk stockings for the first time. Says Mrs. Durbin, "She put them on—took them off—put them on again—deciding she might as well start now to be grown-up." Says Deanna, "Everyone's trying to run my life—except me."

The Al Jolson radio show. . . . Jolson is very tense—frowns when Martha Raye misses her cue twice, and once when she leaves the stage before she should and is rushed back. Orchestra Leader Victor Young tells me, "I was taken prisoner during the war. But the German officers were so impressed with my violin playing—they let me go!"

A few minutes to tune-in time on the Rudy Vallee program. "Tum, tum, de-da-da-dum," croons Rudy. "Now, is there anyone who doesn't understand what I mean?" No one does, so Rudy starts tum-tumming again. He gets tired after the third tum-hum. "What the —— is the matter will you boys today?" he blares. "Wake up!"

LOWER POWER RATES FOR JESUP ACCEPTED

The Georgia Public Service Commission yesterday accepted Georgia Power & Light Company's lower commercial rate schedule for the Jesup area.

The commission said the rate reductions will bring savings to small commercial users through direct reductions and to large users through installation of the one-meter system.

'Chippie' Is Favorite Student at Seminary

"Chippie" finds Miss Cortez Cooledge's shoulder a fine place to sit during classes at Washington Seminary. "Chippie" is six months old and goes to school every day—except twice when she played hookey.

Chipmunk With Tinted Fingernails Is Student at Washington Seminary

"Chippie" is a 6-month-old chipmunk the cat dragged in half dead to the home of Miss Cortez Cooledge last October.

Now "Chippie" is full grown, goes to Washington Seminary with the girls and even has her "fingernails" tinted bright red like her classmates.

The strange pet of the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cooledge, of 15 Huntington road, is a friendly little animal who runs up and down the arms and shoulders of the students, plays with their pencils and eats candy, nuts and cake during the recess period.

Yesterday "Chippie" was in class at the seminary, but she took time out for a sunbath in her wicker basket bed. Miss Cooledge explained:

"When the cat brought 'Chippie' she was half dead. I fed her hot milk with an eye dropper and she has become the best pet I ever had. She wears a specially made harness with leash which is long enough for her to have freedom to run around. I give her a bath every Saturday night and then wrap her in three bath towels to keep her from catching cold. She sleeps in a bird cage and every morning daddy lets her out and she runs and jumps in bed with me."

"Chippie" played hookey from Latin class yesterday and when found was perched on the side of a vase of jonquils drinking water. Once before she played hookey from class and when found was caught in the hot air register with the result that the end of her tail is missing now.
